TROOPS ON WAY TO MARION, IND., AFTER LYNCHING

Persons Unknown in Mob, Jury Says.

BULLETIN.
Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Two companies of the 157th infantry, Indiana National Guard, arrived here tonight from Camp Knox, Ky., and en route to Marion, Ind. The guardsmen left in two special cars over the Interstate Public Service company's lines. Officials estimated the trip to Marion would take five hours. Company I was in command of Capt. Robert F. Durbin and company K in command of Capt. John F. Houck. Col. George E. Healy of Indianapolis flew to Marion.

Marion, Ind., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Indiana National Guard troops were on the way here tonight as the result of the lynching last night of two Negro youths who had murdered a white youth and raped his sweetheart. Mayor Jack Edwards made the request for troops. He explained that representative Negroes had expressed fears of possible racial trouble as an aftermath of the lynchings.

Prosecutor Harley Hardin tonight conferred with two deputy attorneys general concerning a course of action. He said he would summon a county grand jury Sept. 1 to investigate the lynchings.

Currier's Jury Returns Verdict.
A currier's jury this afternoon returned a verdict to the effect that the two Negroes, Abe Smith and Tom Ship, both 15, came to their deaths by being hanged by a mob composed of persons unknown. Claude Deeter, 23, victim of the Negroes, was shot by Ship, the jury found.

Deeter, who lived at Fairmont, seven miles from Marion, had taken his sweetheart, Miss Mary Ball, 18, for an automobile ride. They were parked in his car Wednesday night when three armed Negroes forced him out of his machine, robbed him, killed him, and then raped Miss Ball. Her cries attracted motorists who rescued her.

A mob gathered at Fairmont last night after it had been reported that Smith and Ship had confessed to the lynchings and attack on the girl. Gaining recruits on the way and in Marion, the mob stormed the jail, fighting back when they used tear bombs with a bomb, smashed locks and broke bars with sledges, and hustled the Negroes out of their cells.

Women Join with Men.
Women joined with men in belaboring the Negroes with clubs and hammers, and there were many children in the crowd. First Ship was slain, and then Smith. Their bodies then were strung up on the courthouse lawn.

Making the request for troops followed a day of sleepy inactivity except for the inquest during which the citizens of this tree shaded city gathered in street corners and in front of the tree on the courthouse lawn from which the Negroes were hanged, already designated as the hanging tree, and expressed satisfaction over the dispatch with which the affair had been handled.

The bodies of the lynched men swung from the limbs of the gnarled tree for hours and were only cut down after thousands of morbid curiosity seekers had stared and gesticulated. When the mob stormed the jail Sheriff Campbell ordered that no shots be fired and no blows struck for the defense of the prisoners for fear of hurting hundreds of women and children who crowded close to watch the proceedings.

Identify 'Unknown.'
It was general knowledge today that many of the members of the mob were known or suspected. None were names and personal names were hanging back and forth during the lynching. Sheriff Campbell said he could not identify a single member of the mob, while Prosecutor Hardin said he could not answer questions concerning identity at this time.

Persons who witnessed the lynchings insisted today that firing into the mob by Sheriff Campbell and his deputies and the handful of city police under Chief of Police Lewis Lindsey would not have stopped the assault and certainly would have increased the carnage.

Interest in the lynching and the conditions surrounding it arose to such a pitch today in the crowd around the "Hanging Tree" that a survey of the lynchings of Indiana was made. When 1899 there have been 26 lynchings in the state, 16 Negroes and 10 whites. The last previous lynching was on Nov. 2, 1902.

BRITISH BATTLE AFGHAN HORDES INVADING INDIA

Tribesmen Menace Khyber Pass City.

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

PESHAWAR, Aug. 8.—The Afri tribesmen invading India were reported this evening to have reached the village of Sorozai, three miles south of Peshawar. An attack on the city is believed to be developing.

Cavalry searched villages and caves west of the Kajuri plain, where the main force is believed to be in hiding. One Afri was killed when an advance party of tribesmen was encountered by British troops at Landi, about a mile from Peshawar.

PESHAWAR, India, Aug. 8.—(AP)—British troops were in action today against Afri tribesmen advancing on Peshawar. The strength of the horde of Afghan warriors was estimated variously at 5,000 to 10,000. The fighting thus far, two advance guard encounters, had not been of a general nature and the casualties were not divulged. A general attack on the city was expected tonight.

Airplanes continued all day today their bombing and reconnoitering flights over the rocky country in which the hostile tribesmen have concentrated in what is believed to be the greatest number attempting to cross the frontier recently.

Close Gates of City.
Every possible precaution was taken in Peshawar tonight to guard the safety of the residents. The city gates were closed and all permits to leave were canceled. The populace was warned not to leave shelter.

The warriors constituting the present menace are said to have been agitated by the Afghan Youth league of the Burhankehl district and the new League of Youth of Peshawar, both organizations allegedly having communistic connections.

A defensive line of troops has been formed between the city and the advancing enemy. Heavy detachments are encamped along the fringe of a barren area over which the tribesmen would have to travel in any attempted assault.

30 Planes in Readiness.
British airplanes, said to number upwards of fifty, many of them big bombers and all equipped with war implements, were held in readiness to sweep over the opposing forces if any considerable movement was detected by the scouts who are constantly patrolling the area by air and land.

Peshawar and the Khyber pass have been scenes of much bloody fighting in the past, for even the Mogul emperors of bygone centuries had difficulty in controlling the fanatical warriors of the hills.

For years and years the raiders have found loot in the city and in the pass. In the autumn Afghan mercenaries were accustomed to bring caravans from Kabul, Bokhara, Samarkand—rich convoys loaded with silks, precious stones, rugs and other products of the East. Each one was forced to fight or buy its way through, and many were obliterated.

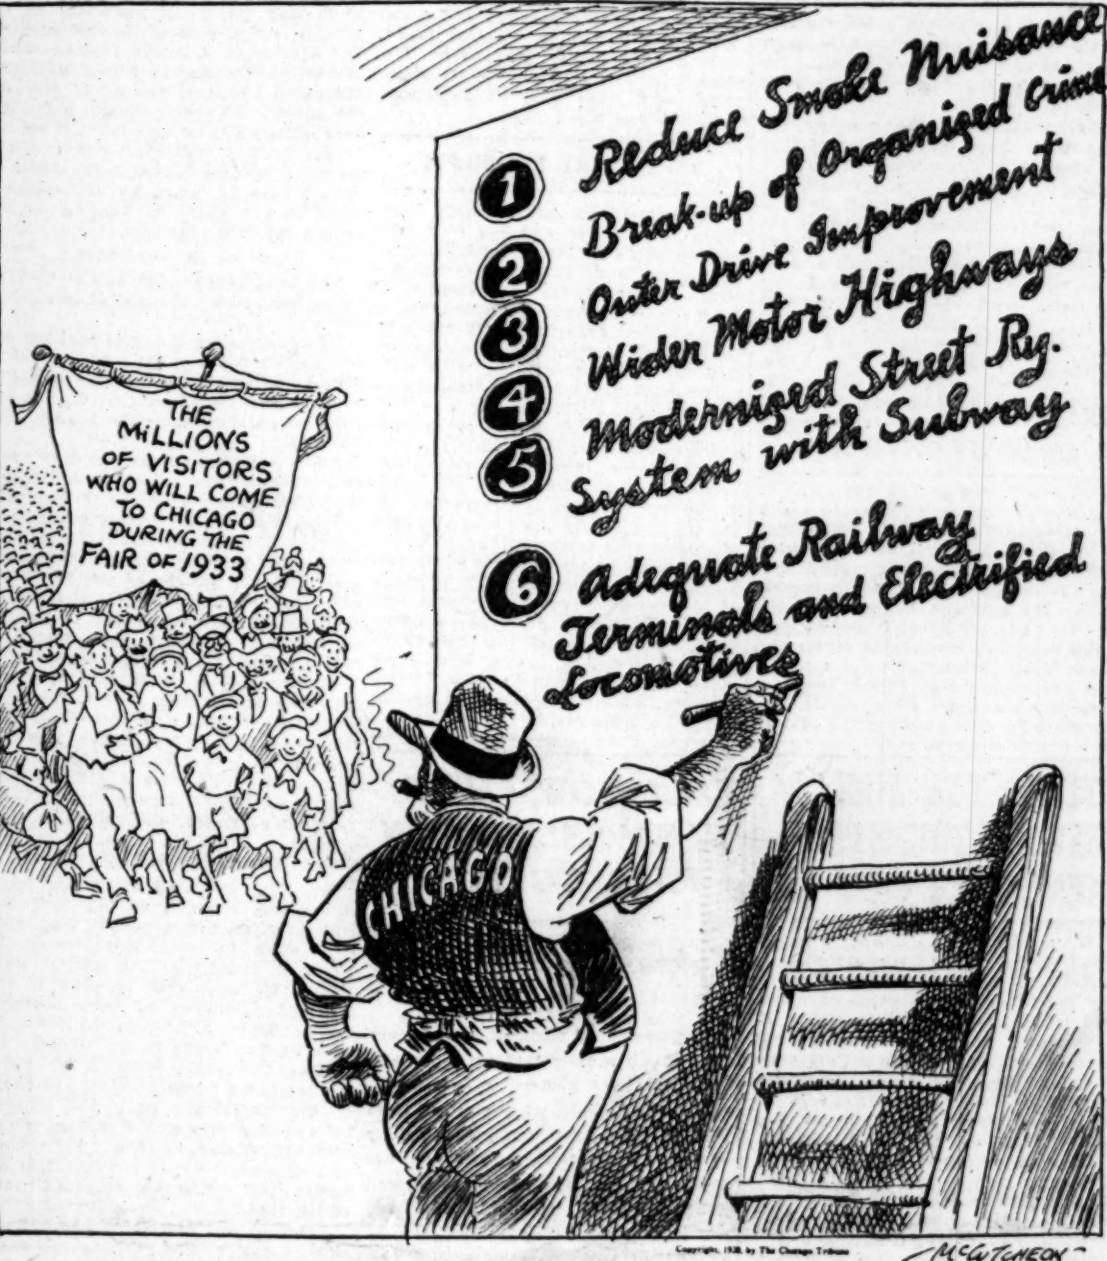

Two Killed in Moslem Riot.
Far to the southwestward, in the Karachi district, trouble broke out again today between Moslems and Hindus, two persons being killed and seven wounded. The trouble was reported to be spreading. About eight were killed and many injured in similar trouble earlier this week.

Pandit Malaviya, nationalist leader who was arrested at Bombay last Saturday because he and others refused to disperse a group of their followers, was released yesterday and given the option of a fifteen day jail term instead. An unidentified person paid the fine today, and the pandit went to a nationalist demonstration at Chowmaty Sands immediately after his release.

Amanullah Plans Return.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The Afri invasion of India and unrest in Afghanistan have brought Amanullah Khan, former king of Afghanistan, into activity again. It is reported that in the last few weeks he has realized nearly $5,000,000 on his jewels and is planning to return with a full war chest to Afghanistan to make another bid for the throne. As the route through Persia is closed because of the friction between Persia and Afghanistan he is planning to travel by the way of Russia.

TERRY DRUGGAN (AS A MILKMAN) IS UNDER ATTACK

A milk war, with the beer barons, Terry Druggan and Frankie Lake as the insurgents, threatens Aurora and ultimately other communities in the Chicago area. Harry R. Cochrane, secretary of the Aurora Pure Milk association, told the Tribune today that Druggan and Lake, who have gone into the milk producing business, plan to erect a milk distributing plant in Aurora and to bring in milk from other parts of the state to be sold here.

Mayor Charles H. Greene, speaking for the council, said that he did not understand why more competition would mean higher costs to consumers. The council, he said, cannot prevent Druggan and Lake from bringing milk into Aurora if it meets health department standards.

South Parks O.K. Unified Traffic Lights

BY HAL FOUST.
George T. Donoghue, superintendent of south parks, agreed yesterday to a proposal to coordinate the traffic lights of Michigan avenue between 23d and Oak streets. At his suggestion, the Chicago Motor club called a meeting for next week of officials and traffic experts of the city, the south parks, and of Lincoln park. Each of these governmental bodies controls a section of the boulevard—Lincoln park, from the bridge north; the city, from the bridge to Randolph street, and the south parks, from Randolph street south.

"For $3,000," said Mr. Donoghue, "we can wire the three light systems into one cycle. At present, the south parks and the city signals are coordinated, but Lincoln park is on a separate timing. A motorist southbound, for example, will be stopped for the pedestrian crossing in front of the Tribune Tower. After getting the green light, he will be stopped again by a red light at Wacker drive."

"Progressive Timing" to Wait.
"We can use a unified system while deciding whether a 'progressive' or 'wave' arrangement of the lights would be an improvement over the present synchronous timing. To install the 'progressive' system would cost $50,000 and, in case it should cause more harm than good, it would cost much more to return to our present timing."

The park commissioners must be convinced that the 'progressive' system is the better before spending any considerable amount of money. At present the new system has the recommendation of the street car company's traffic expert and of the city's traffic expert. We must get further expert opinion. That will be one of the subjects for the motor club's conference."

Urges Prompt Action.
"As far as the $50,000 is concerned," added South Park Commissioner Michael L. Igoe, "any benefit to the movement of traffic on Michigan avenue is worth many times that amount in saving of minutes for motorists and bus riders. Let's get some experts to work on the problem and do something promptly. The simple coordination of the lights to relieve congestion between Randolph and Oak streets should be accomplished in two weeks."

3,972,434 RESIDE IN COOK COUNTY, CENSUS REPORTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—The official preliminary population of Cook county, Illinois, was announced by the census bureau today as 3,972,434. In 1920 the population was 3,859,017. The 1930 population had previously been announced locally.

BRITISH AIRMAN TAKES DEATH DIVE TO SAVE HIS PALS

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, Aug. 8.—A Royal Air Force plane crashed on Sussex Downs today, missing by only 15 feet 1,300 infantrymen who were witnessing air maneuvers. The pilot, Sgt. Owen H. MacNair, known as the "Black Spider" because of his daring, was instantly killed. It is believed he sacrificed himself to save the soldiers.

Sgt. MacNair, after finishing a loop, swooped down in his single seater fighter diving to within 15 yards of the line of troops when the plane failed to rise.

Apparently finding his plane too near the soldiers he made a nose dive straight to the ground, 15 feet away. The men rushed to the wrecked airplane and the pilot from the safety straps which still held him in his seat, but found he was dead.

CHAS. M. SCHWAB COMES TO RESCUE OF HIS BROTHER

New York, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel corporation and ruler of other vast industrial enterprises, came today to the rescue of his younger brother, Edward H. Schwab, who filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in New York on June 18.

He assumed responsibility for liabilities of $668,550, against which his brother reported assets of only $53,581.

The younger Mr. Schwab was one of the promoters of the Newark Garden corporation which was to have built a sports arena using steel from the old Madison Square Garden, and which collapsed a few months ago. He listed his stock in the project as having no value.

Japanese Volcano Erupts; Rains Ashes on Americans

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

KARUIZAWA, Japan, Aug. 8.—Mount Asama, eight miles from here, erupted at 10:20 o'clock this evening. The eruption was followed by a violent explosion following a rumbling which lasted several minutes. The explosion was followed by a rain of ashes and small stones, which continued to fall heavily. More than 800 foreigners, mostly Americans, are spending the summer here. No danger is anticipated for Karuizawa unless the volcano emits larger stones.

Grocery Buying Power of Dollar Best in Years

At the bank a dollar is a dollar. It's the same now as it will be next year, or was last year or before the war. It always buys the same number of dimes and nickels, or other specie.

But at the grocery, it's something else again. A dollar there, isn't always a dollar. Its power in buying food varies. Right now it's high, because of the low prices at which the grocers are offering staples.

Fruit and vegetables to be sure, are not as low as a year ago, due to too much sunshine and too little rain. But few are pure vegetarians. And the other items in the ordinary family diet are off enough to offset higher prices for oranges. Such important items as flour, eggs, sugar and coffee, are almost the cheapest within memory. Other things are down nearly as much. The dollar, as a whole, buys more at the grocery store than at any time in six years.

THE GREATERTHINCH

Chicago to Get Cooling Lake Breeze Today

Dispatches from everywhere in the central and eastern states yesterday reiterated the same woeful weather story—blistering heat and unbroken drought, excepting in portions of North Dakota and Minnesota, where heavy showers benefited the withered crops.

Variable breezes, occasionally off the lake, again saved Chicago from the 100 degree temperatures prevalent elsewhere in the middle west. A maximum of 88 degrees was reached here at 2 p. m. and the mercury declined to a comparatively comfortable level last evening. Somewhat cooler weather is predicted for Chicago this afternoon, when the wind is due to shift and blow off Lake Michigan. The day will be partly cloudy.

Southern Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Ohio, Maryland, and West Virginia remained in the grip of the drought.

Says Heat Hatches Eggs.
Carbondale led Illinois' heat roster yesterday with a maximum of 111 degrees, the second highest temperature on record there. At Johnston City, where the maximum was 110, John Hobbs, a chicken raiser, reported that eggs in a nest deserted by a hen a week ago were being hatched by the sun's heat.

At Effingham, Ill., only a two weeks' water supply remained in the city reservoir, and the mercury was at 105. Other extreme readings downtown were: Harrisburg, 106; Centralia, 105½; and Carbondale, 109.

Missouri's plight was as desperate as in lower Illinois. The burning sun forced the temperature to 102 in St. Louis, 105 at Jefferson City, and 107 at Poplar Bluff.

Seeks School Delay.
With the thermometer going above 100 degrees at Springfield, Mo., yesterday, L. H. Coward, state superintendent of schools, appealed to boards of education in the rural districts to postpone opening of schools until cooler weather. Many of the country schools already have opened their fall terms.

While most of Indiana baked, a ballstorm broke in the vicinity of St. Joseph, Mo., where a deluge of rain fell west of Hudson and near Auburn, Ind., turning highways into running streams and marring motorists for a time.

Northern Iowa, northern Nebraska, southeastern South Dakota and southwestern Minnesota continued to parch. At Sioux City, Ia., the mercury soared to 94, and the corn crop damage in that vicinity ranged from 25 to 70 per cent of the total yield.

Eight Die in Baltimore.
In the east eight deaths occurred at Baltimore as a result of the heat and a forest fire near Cumberland, Md., has devastated 15,000 acres of timberland. At Annapolis measures were taken against a water famine.

Excepting where there were scattered showers in central Ohio, that state's crops drooped further yesterday under continued drought and extreme temperatures. The corn crop generally is lost, but heavy rains may still save potatoes, grapes and late apple crops of Ohio, according to C. G. Williams, director of the state experimental station at Wooster. Water supplies were described as dangerously low at Canton and from Cleveland suburbs, South Euclid and Mayfield Heights.

Warms of Human Suffering.
"The situation is one to cause a great deal of concern, but it must be borne in mind that the drought has mainly affected animal feed, the bulk of the direct human food production of the country being abundant. Nevertheless, there will be a great deal of privation among families in the drought areas due to the loss of income and the financial difficulties imposed on them to carry their load over the winter. The American people will proudly take care of the necessities of their countrymen in time of stress or difficulty. Our first duty is to assure our suffering countrymen that this will be done, that their courage and spirit shall be maintained, and our second duty is to assure an effective organization for its consummation."

HOOVER CALLS 12 GOVERNORS TO PLAN RELIEF

Opens Conference in Capital Thursday.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Governors of the twelve states most acutely affected by the drought were summoned by President Hoover today to meet with government officials in Washington next Thursday to consider plans for an organization to furnish practical relief in the stricken agricultural areas.

The President announced his decision to call upon the state executives today following a series of conferences with members of his cabinet and heads of various governmental agencies and farm organizations. At the same time he made public a preliminary department of agriculture report showing the extent of the drought and made an appeal for public cooperation in the emergency.

Organization for Relief.
"As a result of conferences of the last few days, which embrace the cabinet, members of the farm board and the farm loan board, together with Presidents Thompson, Tabor and Huff of the farm organizations, I have decided to ask the governors of the states most acutely affected by the drought to meet with us in Washington next Thursday in order to consider definite plans for organization of relief," Mr. Hoover said.

"Such organization will need first to be undertaken by the states, and through them the counties, with whom the various federal agencies can cooperate."

"I now have the preliminary survey of the department of agriculture of the situation as of Aug. 1. It shows that the shortage of animal feed crops is most acute in southeastern Missouri, northern Arkansas, southern Illinois, southern Indiana, southern Ohio, Kentucky, northern West Virginia, and northern Virginia, with spots of less dimensions in Montana, Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska—the latter three states being the less acutely affected."

Prevent Live Stock Sacrifice.
"I shall ask the governors of those states to attend. The feed crops in some other states are also reduced, the amount of ultimate reduction depending upon rain during the next two weeks. It may develop that we shall need to ask the governors of one or two other states also to attend. In any event, in the most acute areas we should now lay the foundation for effective local and state organization, the object of which is to prevent suffering among farm families deprived of support, and to prevent the sacrifice of live stock more than is necessary."

"In the acutely affected areas which I have mentioned there are approximately one million farm families who possess approximately two and a quarter million horses and mules, six million cattle, and twelve million hogs and sheep. This represents approximately 12 per cent of the animals in the country. Obviously the individual farmers in the acute area are differently affected. Their losses run all the way from a few per cent up to their entire animal feed crops. The actual numbers who are in distress, therefore, will be less than these gross figures."

"Secretary Hyde has instructed the county agents to make a further more searching and definite report upon the later progress of the drought and the nature of the relief that will be necessary in the different counties. We are in hopes that we shall have this information in hand ready for the meeting of the governors."

Warms of Human Suffering.
"The situation is one to cause a great deal of concern, but it must be borne in mind that the drought has mainly affected animal feed, the bulk of the direct human food production of the country being abundant. Nevertheless, there will be a great deal of privation among families in the drought areas due to the loss of income and the financial difficulties imposed on them to carry their load over the winter. The American people will proudly take care of the necessities of their countrymen in time of stress or difficulty. Our first duty is to assure our suffering countrymen that this will be done, that their courage and spirit shall be maintained, and our second duty is to assure an effective organization for its consummation."

Prior to issuance of his announcement regarding the governor's relief conference, President Hoover spent a large part of the day discussing the drought with his advisers.

Following a second conference in two days with Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, the President called three members of the farm board and its general counsel, Stanley Reed, to the White House. The board members were Samuel R. McKelvie, W. F. Schilling and Charles S. Wilson. Mr. Hoover put aside virtually all other business to give his full attention to the drought situation presented.

The weather bureau today saw "some hope" for a break in the drought, but there was no immediate relief in sight. Pressure conditions in Canada gave prospects of rain in the next week, officials said, but they made it plain that the extent of the precipitation is highly problematical.

Illinois Damage Tremendous.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Assessing that drought damage to Illinois crops had been tremendous, Gov. Louis I. Emmerson yesterday expressed belief that the state's most effective relief measure would be provision of work to tide farmers over until they began getting a living income from their farms.

The governor also suggested that the federal government could help by arranging to defer interest payments on their loans to agriculturalists.

"I have asked various state and local officials to push forward every possible building or highway construction project that can be carried out this year. Probably we can find other relief measures, but building work seems to me the most general and most effective. The farmers are going to need a great deal of help."

"Everything south of Springfield—corn fields, pastures, truck gardens—is burned up. I drove south the other day and it looked like November in the fields, and the corn was dead. North to the state line, which had stood up pretty well through the early weeks of drought, have been badly affected in the last few days."

"So far Illinois has had no definite plans for relief, but a survey of the burned areas and the extent of the damage is now in progress. With that information available, we can go ahead with plans."

WARNERS OF FOOD BOOST.

New York, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—While Health Commissioner Wynne took measures today to assure an adequate supply of pure milk for New York "under any circumstances," distributors of dairy products, poultry and fresh vegetables began to complain of the heat wave because of the drought and spoke of the necessity for higher prices.

Officials of the department of health countered with assurances of an ample supply of high grade milk and vegetables for the city, and in strong terms warned of the likelihood of an "outrageous conspiracy" by some food distributors to take advantage of the heat wave by selling higher prices on New York consumers.

An indication that there has been already an addition to the weekly food bill of the city conservatively estimated at $1,000,000 was seen in a survey of wholesale and retail prices current in the New York food market.

TRIO ARRESTED; $15,500 STOLEN SECURITIES FOUND

Three alleged members of a bond theft ring, which Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the First district police believes operates nationally, were in custody yesterday. They were arrested last night while the police were hunting a fourth man who is expected to reach Chicago today.

Robert Hampden of Indianapolis was arrested at the Palmer house where he tried to cash a check with the aid of a forged $2,500 letter of credit. Capt. Gilbert said, which was drawn on the Bank of San Francisco. Hampden's disclosures led to the arrest of Leo Morgan, 27, of McCormick, 2700 Lincoln Park West, in Morgan's possession, the police found stolen securities valued at $15,500, including two bonds worth $2,000 stolen from a Cicero State bank messenger.

RANCH MANAGER ASKS ACCOUNTING BY JOHN RINGLING

A bill for an accounting was filed yesterday in the Circuit court against John Ringling, veteran circus owner, by R. M. Calkins Jr. of White Sulphur Springs, Mont., who says he has been a manager for Ringling's cattle lands in Montana. Ringling, who is here with his circus, was served with papers in the action.

The bill alleges that Ringling entered into an agreement with Calkins on June 15, 1930, under which the latter was to receive 15 per cent of the proceeds of a 10,000-acre ranch and other interests for his services until Ringling recovered the cost of the property. According to the bill Ringling sold the property to his nephew without notifying Calkins. The bill states that he has managed various properties for Ringling since 1916.

ASK CITY WATER FOR ROCKEFELLER ESTATE'S NEEDS

Tarrytown, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP)—So depleted by drought is the nine million gallon water reservoir on the Pottsville Hill estate of John D. Rockefeller that permission was given today for the tapping of the Tarrytown municipal system to supply the estate. Orders have been issued on the Rockefeller estate to curtail the use of water, and the large fountain in front of the mansion has been shut off for the first time in years. Several artificial streams on the estate are dry. The estate consumes more than 100,000 gallons of water a day. The reservoir is almost dry and two wells have ceased to flow.

Grant Park Plane Ramp Is Opened by Park Officials

The airplane ramp for amphibians and seaplanes at the foot of 83rd street in Grant park was completed yesterday and formally opened by officials of the south park board. The ramp, constructed of concrete and steel to withstand the ravages of the lake, which destroyed the former plank ramp, cost approximately $11,000. It provides a downtown landing place and opens the way for air transportation to the heart of the city.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—The test of the memorandum on the drought situation presented to President Hoover today by the bureau of agricultural economics of the department of agriculture follows:

THE HUMAN FOOD SUPPLY

Considered in its broader aspects, the 1930 drought does not present a serious problem of food supply for the nation. The winter wheat crop already harvested is ample. The spring wheat crop, while it undoubtedly has deteriorated perhaps as much as 10 per cent during the month of July, should still be nearly equal to domestic food requirements.

While the crop of potatoes in the intermediate section is not large, the late crop in commercial sections of the northern states gives promise of a fair to good yield. The rice crop has not been seriously affected. Most of the acreage of edible beans is outside the drought area. The winter supply of fresh vegetables, from southern sources, will not be planted for some time. The crop of canning tomatoes, while short, is not seriously affected. The crop of canning peas has already been harvested and was produced north of the drought area. The early crop of canning beans was only fair; the late canning bean crop is produced outside the drought area.

Fruit crops are not large, but are not small enough to constitute a shortage, particularly since the California and other Pacific state fruit crops give promise. However, in the drought area the small fruits, such as grapes and other crops grown for home food supply for the fall months and winter are causing want and hardship to many individuals.

FEED FOR LIVE STOCK

The critical aspect of the drought situation lies in the inadequate production of feed for live stock in certain sections of the country. For the United States the outlook late in July points to a production of about 90 per cent of an average crop of the feed grains—corn, oats, barley, and wheat—about 85 per cent of an average production of hay, or a combined feed production of approximately 88 per cent. For the country

EGYPT'S HONEY YIELD IS RUINED, SURVEY REVEALS

Pittsfield, Ill., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Two closely related branches of Illinois agriculture meet here today to study effects of drought on the state's increasingly important apple and honey crops. In the face of a fifty per cent reduction in honey flow and an estimated ten per cent cut in apples, growers from most parts of the state inclined to a philosophical attitude. They are on the verge of marketing fruit in six midwestern states and supplying at least Chicago and downstate honey requirements.

Here on the rolling hillsides of the Illinois and Mississippi rivers thousands of acres of apple trees are fighting the long dry spell unusually well according to John C. Gaver, president of the Illinois Horticultural society. In southern counties the crop is damaged.

Produces 6,500 Cars of Apples.

Illinois normally produces about 6,500 carloads of apples, according to A. E. Leeper, Chicago manager of the Illinois Fruit Growers' exchange. Calhoun county normally produces half the state crop with Pike county second largest in acreage and yields. A tour of large orchards here widely attended by fruit and bee men of the state was arranged by Arthur Foreman, A. R. Bunn, Pittsfield horticulturist. There are more than 20,000 beekeepers in Illinois.

25 ARGENTINIAN VISIT CHICAGO; FIND IT GOOD

Mario Estrada, secretary of the Argentine Fruit Growers' association, led a delegation of twenty-five Argentinians, including five women, into Chicago yesterday. The party is on its way to the Pan-American business conference at Sacramento. The visitors said they found Chicago safe and interesting, preferring it to New York. They praised current American song hits and disparaged Latin-American bullfighting.

GIRL FINDS STORE COAT IS COSTLIER THAN COAT OF TAN

Last Thursday afternoon Capt. Martin J. O'Malley of the Summerdale police advised Miss Eleanor Ahrens, 20 years old, 905 Winona street, to get some clothes. She had been seized at the Winona street beach while she was taking a sun bath with a towel wound around her hips. Miss Ahrens said that her physician had advised sun baths for a nervous disorder. She was released after the captain gave his admonition.

Yesterday Miss Ahrens was stopped by Sgt. John Noonan as she was leaving a loop department store with a coat valued at $150. She had neglected to pay the coat. She was charged with shoplifting and will be arraigned in the South State street court today.

Jackson and O'Brine Point Plane for Hunters' Record

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine "tightened their belts" tonight and pointed their endurance plane, Greater St. Louis, toward the 554-hour refueling flight record of the Hunter brothers. Well past their former record of 420 hours, the Jackson-O'Brine team had clipped off 444 hours at 7:11 p. m., central standard time.

Hunter Brothers at Cheyenne.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Three of the world's Hunter brothers landed at the airport here late today in three planes. The ship in which they established the world's refueling endurance record was piloted by John Hunter. Kenneth Hunter was at the stick of the refueling ship used in the record shattering endurance flight, and Walter Hunter was flying a third plane. The brothers plan to leave tomorrow for Yankton, S. D.

PROBABLE 1930 PRODUCTION

There are only four sections in which it appears that production will be over or below average. These are the New England states, a small segment of the south Atlantic coast, a territory and adjacent portions of South Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa, and Arizona.

Two sections of the country will apparently have only 60 per cent of an average production if weather conditions should be average subsequent to Aug. 1. These are a portion of the Ohio river valley and the Mississippi and on down the Mississippi to the Gulf. A somewhat wider band on either side of this segment will have a production of 70 per cent of an average. The balance of the country apparently will fall within the range of 80 to 100 per cent.

CONDITION OF PASTURE

As might be expected, the areas of deficient pasture roughly coincide with the areas of prospective short feed production. In parts of these areas it is doubtful whether the rainfall during the month of August will greatly revive the pastures, inasmuch as the pasture plants have been entirely killed out. New seedlings of clover and grass have likewise suffered severely and next year's crop of hay and pasture is endangered as a result. Incomplete returns on condition of pas-

FEED, DAIRY PRODUCTS

The coincidence of relatively high live stock number and low feed production in the Montana-Wyoming area and in some of the middle Atlantic states indicates the probability of some liquidation of sheep and cattle in the former area and dairy cattle in the latter. The extremely low probable feed production coinciding with only moderate declines in live stock numbers in the Ohio-Mississippi valley drought area indicates the probability of distress marketing which will probably take the form of cutting dairy herds and sheep flocks and the early marketing of hogs accompanied by the failure to take the usual numbers of stocker and feeder cattle.

There is a possibility that South Dakota, Nebraska and adjacent portions of Minnesota, Kansas and Iowa will be in position to take some extra stocker and feeder cattle. Elsewhere the marketing of cattle, hogs, and sheep will be influenced by price changes in meat animals, feed grains, and dairy products.

TYPE SET BY WIRE IN SEVERAL TOWNS FROM CENTRAL SENDING SET

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Setting type by telegraph in a series of distant newspaper offices by the operation of a machine in a central office has been accomplished on newspapers served by the news wire of the Westchester County Publishers, Inc., of this city. Announcement of the first practical use of the teletype setting was made today by J. Noel Macy, president of the Westchester Newspaper company.

A story may be cut or edited to a limited degree at the receiving end, but if maximum speed is desired the message may not be intercepted. Rolls of oiled paper tape, similar to that now widely in use on teletype machines, are the medium upon which the teletype operator makes his impression. The operator reproduces in the key of the transmitter and impressions are made on the tape as it passes through the machine. The tape looks like a perforated music roll. It passes through a device which reproduces in the receiving office the identical impressions appearing on the punched tape at the transmitting end.

Simultaneous with the reproduction of the tape in the receiving offices a printed version of the story is received by the newspaper composing rooms. This enables the receiving editors to read the story as it comes in. If they wish to cut it they find the corresponding section of the punched tape and eliminate it.

Four Chicagoans Hurt in Wreck Which Killed Two

Winslow, Ariz., Aug. 8.—(AP)—R. E. Pixley, 42, engineer, and M. E. Burney, 41, fireman, were killed and 29 passengers were slightly injured when the engine and two cars of Santa Fe passenger train No. 8 plunged into the Little Colorado river last night one mile east of Joseph City, Ariz. A check today by railroad officials showed none of the passengers were hurt seriously. Among the injured were Mrs. William Arney, 4803 Hunt place; Mrs. E. Hohenes, 3713 South Oakley avenue; Leona Scott, 3901 Exchange avenue; C. F. Brent and Elva Brent, 6111 South Missouri street, all of Chicago, and Mrs. Carl Nelson, 2148 Willard avenue, and Mrs. Leonard Plantz, 3528 Willard avenue, Milwaukee.

Drought Blamed for Two Bank Failures in Arkansas

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Prolonged drought today was held responsible for the failure of two banks in Arkansas. The Bank of Slaton, in southwest Arkansas, and the Bank of Cove, capitalized at $10,000 and with $75,000 in deposits, passed into the hands of the state banking department.

LIVE STOCK IN 1930

It is noted that for the United States the numbers of 1930 are approximately 5 per cent below average. Only two areas have as many or more than average. These are Montana and Wyoming, where sheep numbers have expanded as a result of the series of comparatively good crop years, and a portion of the North Atlantic states where the number of dairy cows and heifers has been gradually increased. In South Dakota the number of live stock is 10 per cent below average, largely because of a series of relatively poor crop years.

In the central corn belt, from Ohio to Missouri, live stock numbers are approximately 8 per cent below average, due largely to a decrease in the hog numbers. Elsewhere live stock numbers are below average by a small percentage except in isolated cases, such as Oklahoma, Mississippi, Nevada, Louisiana, and Florida. Of these, only Nevada is an important live stock producing state.

FEED, DAIRY PRODUCTS

The coincidence of relatively high live stock number and low feed production in the Montana-Wyoming area and in some of the middle Atlantic states indicates the probability of some liquidation of sheep and cattle in the former area and dairy cattle in the latter. The extremely low probable feed production coinciding with only moderate declines in live stock numbers in the Ohio-Mississippi valley drought area indicates the probability of distress marketing which will probably take the form of cutting dairy herds and sheep flocks and the early marketing of hogs accompanied by the failure to take the usual numbers of stocker and feeder cattle.

TELL HOW PILOT FLEW "BLIND" ON PASSENGER TRIP

The first blind flight of a passenger airplane on a scheduled air route was described here yesterday by passengers on that flight who returned from Detroit. The feat was performed by W. E. [Slin] Larned, pilot on the Stout Air Lines, who flew a trimotor Ford transport plane from the Chicago municipal airport to the Ford airport at Detroit without a glimpse of the ground and guided solely by his instruments.

Larned took off from the airport here at 5:40 p. m. Thursday with ten passengers aboard his plane. With Larned in the cockpit was Elmer McMullin, co-pilot, who went along as observer to watch for other planes in the air. Two thousand feet above the airport Larned covered the windows of the cabin with cardboard and placed a blind between himself and his co-pilot so that he had no view of the sky or the ground.

Uses Special Compass.

The pilot used a special aerodrome compass and the United States airway directional radio beacon to guide his plane, a gyroscopic turn-and-bank indicator and the usual flying instruments to maintain level flight.

He followed the directional beam of radio signals to La Porte and from there relied on his compass for 40 minutes until he picked up the directional beam from the radio station at the Ford airport in Detroit and followed it in to his destination.

Arrives Over Airport.

"Here we are," said Larned to his co-pilot as the plane came over the Detroit landing field where radio signals indicated the ship had arrived at its destination. Then he pulled the cardboard away from the cockpit windows and landed.

Larned said the flight demonstrated the effectiveness of instrument and radio beam flying for large cross-country passenger planes encountering heavy fog or poor visibility.

SUBPOENAS OUT FOR WITNESSES TO ZUTA KILLING

Gang Letters Found in Milwaukee Raid.

$35,725 IN REWARDS.
Rewards totaling $35,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer
of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter.
The $25,000 reward offered by the Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Seaton in room 503, Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Reluctant and frightened witnesses
of the murder of Jack Zuta, Chicago gang leader, will be forced to aid the authorities in the investigation of the murder, District Attorney Herman Seaton of Waukegan county, Wisconsin, announced last night.
Mr. Seaton appeared before Judge
Newton W. Evans at Oconomowoc yesterday and obtained murder warrants for "John Doe," "Richard Roe," charging them with the slay-ing of Zuta. Under Wisconsin laws, this will permit the district attorney to issue subpoenas requiring witnesses to give testimony.
A list of witnesses to be questioned
has been prepared, and deputy sheriffs will start out this morning to find the witnesses, ordering them to appear in the district attorney's office on Monday morning.

Murder Witnesses Vanish.
Many witnesses who saw Zuta shot down in the Lake View hotel at Delafield, Wis., last Friday night have disappeared, Mr. Seaton declared. He emphasized that these witnesses must return and give aid to the inquiry,
and that they would be protected against violence from gang sources.
The district attorney has pictures of many gangsters who may have had a part in the murder of Zuta, and he desires to display these to the witnesses in the hope that the killers might become known.
Among the witnesses whom Mr.
Seaton desires to question, under oath,
and who have not been found by investigators as yet, are Miss Inez Fehman, who is also known as Spearman, a dancer at the hall when Zuta
was killed; three other girls, dancers, whose names are withheld; Walter
and John Newman, students at St.
John's Military academy, whose father is said by the district attorney to have sent the youths out of the country, and a bartender.

Prosecution Makes Statement.
The district attorney issued a statement yesterday which he said he hoped would clear up the tangled web concerning the Zuta murder. He said:
"Any newspaper account to the effect that identifications have been made of any one as a member of the Zuta killing gang is entirely unfounded.
The fact is that not a single witness has even partially identified any one.
The fact is also that no threats have been made against me, or any one else, within my knowledge."
Mr. Seaton revealed that A. N. Desnoy, state investigator for the Wisconsin Bankers' association, had been in conference with him, and that the investigator is interested in reports that the Zuta killers may have been responsible for bank robberies in the state.
The Milwaukee police yesterday arrested Charles "Red" Brennan on a charge of forgery, and upon raiding his room in a house at 151 Knapp street discovered a number of letters indicating Brennan was an intimate of Chicago gangsters.
One letter appeared to have been written by Brennan himself, and this
said:
"They beat me, but I wouldn't tell anything about the uniform."
At time of Moran Massacre.
The letter was dated at about the time of the St. Valentine's day massacre in Chicago, in which seven members of the Moran-Alto-Zuta gang were killed, and in which two of the killers appeared dressed in police uniforms.
Other letters were signed "Kate Chester," who is believed by the Wisconsin authorities to be a sister of Pat Connelley, former manager of the Palvud dog track operated by the Moran gang.
The letters mentioned murders committed among the Chicago gangs, told of Connelley being hunted for one of them, and of the arrest of various gangsters. In one letter the woman mentioned going out with Zuta and one "Pearl."
The Waukegan county authorities were notified and may question Brennan.
The Milwaukee police also were informed by Frank Clark, owner of a soft drink parlor there, that three tenants of an apartment building he owns had disappeared suddenly after remaining in seclusion for three days.
Clark said he suspected the men were Chicago gangsters.
Meanwhile, in Chicago, Pat Roche,

"Jimmy keeps calling for 'mother,

Mrs. Sandberg yesterday. "They are cannot understand how any mother

"I offered to board the children
after seeing a newspaper want ad.
The couple, both very well dressed, brought the children and paid $11 for the first week. They introduced themselves as Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Mellon, formerly of New York. The mother said she was a nurse and had a two-months' case in Detroit. Once she referred to her husband as Mr. Meade and then explained that was his business name."
Mrs. Sandberg said no money came the second week, and the third week
the man appeared after having sent a money order the day before. He took pictures of the children and played with the baby. She has had no word from either parent since.

1 by a couple supposedly their parents, has asked the police, through
Mrs. Elizabeth Sandberg, 3904 North Newcastle avenue, where they were boarded, to find their parents.
"Jimmy keeps calling for 'mother,

Mrs. Sandberg yesterday. "They are

Call Grand Jury
To Investigate
Buckley Murder
Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Detroit's police and legal crusade against outlawry was accelerated today to solve the slaying of Jerry Buckley, redoubt political commentator. Developments were an order by the Circuit court calling a grand jury immediately to go into the Buckley case.
Identification of Angelo Livechi as the "finger man" in the Buckley slaying, and of two men sought for Buckley's assassination as members of the gang which last January tried to kill Police Inspector Henry J. Garvin
in a hotel in Chicago, was the basis for the order.

Salen Holds Different View.
District Attorney Salen declared last night, however, that he regarded Mrs.
Bloff or some one at her apartment as a vital witness in the investigation.
This belief, he said, was based upon telephone records showing that Zuta
in the week before his death had made at least two calls a day to Rogers Park 6638, the number at the Bloff apartment, the last two of which were made within an hour and a half before the murder.
"My information would indicate that the business between Mrs. Bloff or some person at her apartment and Zuta was not as legitimate as she and her husband claim it to have been,"
Mr. Salen said.
The last two phone calls made by Zuta to Rogers Park 6638, the district attorney said the records showed, were at 7:40 and 8:45 p. m. on the night of the murder. He was slain at 9:06, twenty minutes after the last call.

Link Pleas for Bodyguard.
Mr. Salen said that a telephoned demand by Zuta for a bodyguard and safe conduct to Chicago on the day of his murder also had been linked to the Rogers Park number. This conversation was overheard in a drug store in Pewaukee, near Delafield, by a girl who has identified pictures of the caller as those of Zuta. The time of the conversation heard by the girl corresponded with that at which the phone records show a call was made to the Bloff apartment, according to Mr. Salen.
The district attorney said he would make no attempt to question Mrs.
Bloff and her husband or to have them taken to Waukegan county, but would ask Chief Investigator Roche to call them in for further questioning on the information obtained by examination of the telephone records.

TRIBUNE STARTS SUIT TO COMPEL ELECTRIFICATION

State Board to Decide Course of Action.

The complaint of The Tribune company seeking action by the Illinois commerce commission ordering all the railroads in the Chicago area to electrify their lines and terminals, and build new stations where necessary,
was filed with the commission late yesterday afternoon by Attorney Luther M. Walter.

As this is an unusual complaint,
calling on the commission to exercise its administrative power and to proceed with an inquiry, rather than to sit as judges between litigants, its course will be first determined by the commissioners in conference. If they decide to proceed with the investigation, the next move would be to call for reports from the railroads within a specified time under thirty days.

Asks Railroads' Reports.
The railroads have been making their own investigations regarding electrification needs and costs for years, and the complaint asks that these reports of engineers be turned over to the commission upon its request. In this way the hearing should not be as prolonged as an original investigation.

Bankers and Improvement associations leaders, as well as railroad men, were interested yesterday in the report of this proceeding. The attorneys expect that several civic organizations interested in electrification and in the terminal situations will come in as backers of the petition.

Commerce Law Is Cited.
The commerce commission is asked to proceed with the investigation and a subsequent order to all the railroads to electrify their suburban lines within a radius of fifty miles, under the following provisions of the Illinois commerce law:

"Whenever the commission, after a hearing had upon its own motion or upon complaint, shall find that additions, extensions, repairs or improvements, or to changes in the existing plant, equipment, apparatus, facilities or other physical property of any public utility or any two or more public utilities ought reasonably to be made,
or that a new structure or structures
should be erected, to promote the security or convenience of its employes or the public, or in any other way to secure adequate service or facilities,
the commission shall make and serve an order directing that such additions, extensions, repairs, improvements or changes be made, or such structure or structures be erected in the manner and within the time specified in said order."

Division of Costs Discussed.
It is further provided that where two or more public utilities combine to build a joint structure, they shall be granted a reasonable time to agree on the division of costs of extensions or improvements, and if they fail to file an agreement as to costs the commission shall have the authority after further hearing to make an order fixing the proportion of such cost to be borne by each public utility.
This would appear to cover the situation that has arisen over the building of joint terminal stations.

KILLS HIMSELF IN STREET.
Within sight of several pedestrians, James Emory, 80 years old, 1901 South State street, cut his throat with a pocket knife at Howard street and Western avenue yesterday afternoon. He died shortly afterward at the St. Francis hospital in Evanston.

DRYS DIG UP PIPES IN BROOKLYN STREETS TO HALT BEER FLOW

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special].—Laborers began to rip up part of Pulaski street, Brooklyn, today to trace pipe lines through which, it is believed, foamy amber beer of illegal alcoholic content has been flowing for some time.
They bootlegging underworld has taken a tip from the subway and gone underground, undercover agents informed city police. This information led to a raid on a garage where ten trucks were seized and seventeen men arrested.

The raiders, after looking over the building, which was on De Kalb avenue, picked up a few federal dry agents and made for another garage
on Pulaski street, a block away.
There, they said, they found two pipe lines. From one of these they extracted something that looked like real beer and smelled like real beer and even tasted like more or less real beer.

WOLFE TO ORDER RAILROAD TRACKS FROM 2 STREETS

Promises to Act on South Side Issue.

The removal of the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad from Plymouth court and Taylor street in the vicinity of the Dearborn street terminal will be ordered on Monday, according to information given by Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe yesterday to representatives of south side civic organizations.

The request that the railroad be ordered to tear up its tracks within 30 days was made by William J. Marzsch, chairman of the committee of paid secretaries of nine civic organizations, and William A. Dudley, managing director of the Greater Central District association. Their plea was based on the ground that the ordinance granting the railroad the use of those streets expired ten years ago.

Building Plan Is Issue.
The construction by the railroad of a building at 7 West Polk street, for which a permit was issued on July 2, is held by Mr. Dudley to mean that the railroad intends to maintain its tracks in the two streets. He maintained to Commissioner Wolfe that this will seriously complicate the city's plans for opening and widening Plymouth court and Taylor street from the loop to the south and west sides.
"The city needs to open and widen
these streets to perfect the traffic improvements planned as a part of the river straightening project," said Mr.
Dudley. "The streets, which are worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to the city, have been lost to the railroad company for a rental of $3,953 annually."

Ettelson's Opinion Cited.
Corporation Counsel Ettelson, in an opinion sent to Wolfe on July 18,
held that the city can compel the railroad to remove its tracks from this property, as the grant expired on July 14, 1920. One of the terms of the grant provides that the railroad at the expiration date will immediately proceed to remove its tracks and will not resort to any action in court to delay
the removal.

Among the organizations interested in the removal movement are the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce,
South End Chamber of Commerce, Fifty-fifth Street Business Men's association, Woodlawn Business Men's association, South Woodlawn Chamber of Commerce, Englewood Business Men's association, Greater Central District association, South Terminal
District association, and the South Central association.

MAY SET ASIDE THIRD CONVICTION OF DR. RONGETTI

Defense Points to Errors
During Trial.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Isaac Packwood, sentenced to 10 years
in the Joliet penitentiary for larceny under the habitual criminal act by Judge Harry B. Miller.
Jack Criss, sentenced to Pontiac for 1 to 30 years for robbery. Albert Jackson, sentenced to Pontiac for 1 to 10 years for larceny, by Judge D. J.
Nemere.
Joseph Kurda, sentenced to 3 years in the Joliet penitentiary for rape, by Judge Joseph B. David.

Three times Dr. Amante Rongetti has been found guilty of the death of Miss Loretta Enders through an illegal operation, but two of the convictions were set aside by the Supreme court. Yesterday it appeared that the third conviction will be set aside.

The first trial resulted in a verdict of murder and a death penalty for Dr. Rongetti and in each of his other two trials he was found guilty of manslaughter, the penalty for which is 1 to 10 years in prison. In between two of those trials Dr. Rongetti was found not guilty of murder by abortion in the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Palumbo.

Points to Eighteen Errors.
Attorney William Scott Stewart, who has defended Rongetti in the four trials, appeared before Judge Daniel
P. Trude yesterday to argue a motion for a new trial of the case which ended in a conviction last week. He alleged 18 errors in the conduct of the trial, but when he mentioned the first two Judge Trude said:
"If you are right you should have a new trial."

Judge Trude gave two instructions to the third jury which the Supreme court said constituted error in the previous trials, Attorney Stewart declared. The first had to do with the use of the words "attempts to commit an abortion" and "the use of drugs or medicine for that purpose," which Stewart said were out of place in a murder trial. He pointed to the words of the Supreme court regarding this instruction: "This instruction should not have been given."

Wants State to Take Blame.
The other instruction, alleged to be erroneous, was that "the testimony of the accomplice, Hazel Reed, like all other evidence in the case, is for the jury to pass upon."
The Supreme court has repeatedly declared that the testimony of an accomplice "must be regarded with suspicion and must be carefully scrutinized."

"If the state's attorney's office has made an error in the instructions they gave me, let them admit it and take the blame," Judge Trude said. "I directed Assistant State's Attorney Euclid Taylor to remove all instructions that have been branded erroneous by the Supreme court. I want to find out why he didn't do it.
I'll continue this motion until next Tuesday."

Explosion Causes Fire in Home of a Doctor

An explosion in the basement of the home of Dr. I. D. Opat, 610 Groveland park, last night resulted in a fire which caused about $300 damage. The police believed spontaneous combustion of rubbish ignited some cleaning fluid stored. Dr. Opat was not injured.

Red Revolution in China Traced to Door of Moscow

BY JOHN POWELL.
SHANGHAI, Aug. 8.—The Chinese government tonight made public through the official Kuo Min Wen agency information regarding the Chinese communist party, which was organized in 1926, when an alliance was first formed with soviet Russia in Canton.
Although the Chinese Kuomintang party drove out the Russian communists in 1927, the Chinese communist party continued to grow and was directly controlled by Moscow,
the government charged, chiefly through a constant string of Chinese students who were educated in the so-called Oriental university at Moscow, where communist revolutionary technique is taught.

Split Into Two Factions.
Recently, however, the Chinese communist party has split into two factions, violently opposed. One faction is pro-Trotsky and the other pro-Stalin. The leaders of the former group are Chen Tai-hu and Pang Shi-hue. The group supporting Stalin, the Russian dictator, is led by Li Lian-shen and Cha Wen-lai.
The Stalin group, acting on orders
from Moscow, the government says, advocates a violent radical communist revolution. The Trotsky followers hold that the time is not yet ripe for a communist revolution, favoring a slower educational program among the Chinese laboring classes.

The government charges that the pro-Stalin group is responsible for the recent occupation of Changsha and the red disturbances elsewhere in China.
"Allied with Bandits."
"Bent on the realization of stin-der designs," says the report, "they have no scruples in allying themselves with communized bandits under the notorious leaders, Chu-Tse and Mao Tse-tung, to stage a reign of terror."
Chinese communists recently held a so-called soviet congress in Kiangsi province, where, it is said, a plan was outlined for the communization of China within five years. The Chinese government charges that the Stalin group of Chinese communists receives liberal support from Moscow.

A report from Nanking tonight says
President Chiang Kai-shek's troops captured the town of Tainan, a fortified Shanai position, and that the northern red troops fell back toward the Shantung provincial capital of Tsinan. The report says the Nanking forces captured 20,000 prisoners and a large quantity of ammunition.
Mutiny as Reds Near.
HANKOW, Aug. 8.—(AP)—A blow
from within—mutiny of a portion of the Hankow garrison—struck the Nationalist government tonight as preparations were rushed to defend the city against an expected attack of converging communist bands.

The mutineers, who included the commander's bodyguard, were promptly disarmed, but the defending force was weakened and the situation was considered critical. Strict military discipline prevailed as guards patrolled streets and walked their beats in front of public utilities, communication offices and public buildings.

The foreign districts of the sister cities, Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, were crowded. Foreign warships stood by in the Yangtze river to protect their nationals and foreign property.
Continuing the rigid policy of reprisals against communist Nationalist troops tonight executed twelve captured Reds. The executions took place at Wuchang, across the Yangtze river.
Six other communists were executed
here earlier today.

Military authorities captured two Reds in the plant of the Hankow Light and Power company, disrupting what they said was a communist plot to seize the plant and throw the city into darkness. An attempt to disable telephone service also was frustrated.
A Red threat to enter Hankow unless $10,000 was paid commended was received by the local branch of the American National City bank.

CLOSE HEARING ON PETITION TO OUST MAGUIRE

Election Board Chief on

The hearing on the petition to oust Fred V. Maguire as chairman of the board of election commissioners on the charge that he permitted persons with police records to act as judges and clerks of elections closed yesterday before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki. The hearing had required four weeks. The judge ordered attorneys to present written arguments next Monday, stating that if further information was needed he would conduct a personal investigation.

Maguire testified as the last witness in his own behalf. Attorney Albert J. Pink, representing Maguire, asked him if he had ever willingly selected unit persons to serve as election officials as charged by Special State's Attorney Charles Center Case.

"I did not," Maguire answered. "Can you conceive of any reason why you should want to select unit persons?" Pink asked.

"I can not," was the reply. Maguire introduced documents pertaining to his conduct of the election board and told of various meetings with Case when the latter was attorney for the board. Maguire said Case had given orders to employees of the board without consulting the election commissioners and that Case had never protested against the manner of selecting election officials.

Maguire denied that he had ever said "To hell with the Supreme court" as Case had quoted him as saying in reference to a difference over election procedure. Maguire said that he was appointed in 1923. Under cross-examination by Case he said he said no more attention to wards which had a reputation for vote frauds than to others.

Judge Interrupts Case.

Case then asked whether Maguire knew that Cornelius J. Harrington, attorney for the Democratic county central committee, had represented City Collector Morris Eller in an election contest case in 1926. Judge Jarecki interrupted at this point, apparently for the purpose of heading off an anticipated line of questioning.

"Mr. Case, you have complained about various questions being put to you by the other side and I tell you that your last question is as vicious a question as I have ever heard asked," Judge Jarecki said. "You know these people and I know them. You know that was the reason for the break between Anthony Czarnecki and myself. An attorney has a right to be hired by any one."

"I tell you when I tried Eller two years ago I was simply being delivered, and at a time when I as yet didn't know my decisions they were down on the street before I even knew what the evidence was going to be. As a judge on the bench I don't care if it is Eller or you or who it is; everyone is alike and everyone is going to get a square deal."

Refuses to Name Gunmen.

Earlier in the day State Senator John T. Joyce was a witness. He was asked to name the gunmen who appeared at a polling place in the Forty-second ward at the last election. Joyce refused to name the men. "You may not care for your life, Case, but I'm not going to put myself on the spot," Joyce said. He remarked that the state's attorney's office knows the names of the gunmen.

Robert Taylor, who has been an employee of the election board since 1925, explained the methods of selecting election officials. He said that Maguire had never, to his knowledge, committed an illegal act.

JACK PICKFORD, SCREEN STAR, TO WED ACTRESS

Baltimore, Cal., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Jack Pickford, screen star, and Miss Mary Mulhern, former New York stage actress, today filed notice of intention to marry.

Pickford, brother of Mary Pickford, gave his age as 33; Miss Mulhern, 21. Friends said they would be married at Del Monte lodge in Pebble Beach immediately after obtaining the marriage license.

Under California law three days must intervene between the application for and the issuance of the document.

"I am enclosing a letter recently received from Paul McGrath, Chicago architect, whose address for European mail is curiously brief—Brioni," Mr. Madden writes.

"To quote Mr. McGrath: 'Brioni is an island in the north Adriatic near Trieste. It is owned by one man, a wealthy ex-Austrian. He has spent millions of lire in pleasure, hotels, tennis, and golf courses, and bathing pavilions. Brioni is 'ritzier' in a quiet way than the Lido, and the sights are intriguing. Be the shape good or bad for bathing beach purposes, not the slightest attempt is made to conceal it, and I've already seen enough to feel jaded.'

WICKERSHAM AID REFUSES TO TELL WHY HE RESIGNED

Chairman Is Silent on Dissension.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Chairman George W. Wickersham of the Hoover law enforcement commission today chose to ignore a report that the resignation of Max Lowenthal, New York attorney, as the commission's executive secretary was occasioned by disappointment and disgust over its political activities.

Newspaper men seeking a comment upon the Lowenthal story found Mr. Wickersham, who is the only member of the commission now in Washington, busy in his office, but he refused to talk to them. He sent word that he "had nothing whatever to say and would see nobody."

It is understood that the story had been called to his attention previously. The commission chairman this week is working on a speech which he is scheduled to deliver before the American Bar association in Chicago Aug. 20. It was explained that he will make no public statements until that time.

Refuses to Disclose Reports.

Mr. Lowenthal, who became secretary to the commission at Mr. Wickersham's solicitation, resigned the latter part of July. At that time it was stated that he left because Mrs. Lowenthal did not wish to remain in Washington and, although there were hints that he was at odds with the commission, neither he nor any of the members would discuss them.

According to the latest reports, Mr. Lowenthal, who is well to do, took the position thinking he would be associated with an impersonal, non-political and sincere effort to obtain the facts about law enforcement and promote it. Instead, it was asserted, he felt that the commission was debasing the law more than helping to improve it and that it was playing a part in a political game.

One of the understandings was said to have been that no member of the board would discuss its activities for two years pending completion of its study. On the contrary, Mr. Wickersham made several speeches, as did other members, each one of which stirred up controversy, especially among the wets and dries. He was said to have been disillusioned further when the commission sent two "preliminary" reports on prohibition to congress advocating legislation for tightening up enforcement.

Caused Internal Dissension.

These reports were known to have caused internal dissension among members of the commission and were said to have convinced Lowenthal that its activity was hopelessly ensnared in bickering, prejudices, and politics.

At his summer home in New Milford, Conn., Mr. Lowenthal refused to discuss the reports, explaining that the only person who could make any statement would be Chairman Wickersham.

His position at the commission of offices since his departure has been filled by W. P. Barry, formerly secretary to Mr. Wickersham. Mr. Barry temporarily is handling the work of both offices. A permanent successor to Mr. Lowenthal is expected to be chosen at the next meeting of the commission in October.

MOTORIST DIES, FIVE INJURED AS AUTOS COLLIDE

Four Others Are Killed in

A husband and wife and three children were killed and two children were injured yesterday afternoon when two automobiles collided at Bryn Mawr and California avenues. The deaths of four other persons brought the total for the last two days to ten and the 1930 Cook county toll to 583.

W. J. Olson, 2527 Newland avenue, was instantly killed when the auto he was driving collided with another driven by Earl Foster, 30 years old, 6355 North Whipple street. Riding with Olson were his wife, Clara; their son, Webster, 7 years old; Mrs. A. F. Mueller, 817 North Massasoit avenue, and her daughter, Jane, 7. Foster's wife was also injured. The injured were taken to the Swedish Covenant hospital. Foster, who was not injured, was held.

Killed in Train Crash.

J. O. Hennessy, 22 years old, 8213 Lawrence avenue, Niles center, was fatally injured when the truck he was driving was struck by a Milwaukee bound North Shore line train at the East Prairie road crossing in Niles center. Scores of passengers on the train, bound for Milwaukee, were sprayed with cement, gravel, and flying glass, but were unscathed.

The motorman of the train, O. C. Bessinger, 6124 Vernon avenue, was injured when he was crushed in his cab. Witnesses said that Bessinger blew his whistle several times as he neared the crossing, but the truck driver did not slacken his pace. Hennessy was driven by the Arcole Construction company.

Other Victims Listed.

Other auto victims yesterday were: Emma Parker, colored, 4 years old, 464 East 31st street. Fatally injured when she was struck by an automobile driven by Julius Kramer, 2109 Cornell avenue, Kramer was held.

Thomas Osenberger, 27 years old, of Westchester, fatally injured when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another driven by Paul Peterson Jr., 14 years old, 2301 North Keeler avenue, at Lamont avenue and Grace street. The father of the boy is being held.

J. Gerhardt, 65 years old, 4300 Drexel boulevard, instantly killed when he was struck by a hit and run driver at 45th street and Drexel boulevard. Henry Kagg Jr., 11 years old, 7311 West Belmont avenue, Elmwood Park, American, injured when he was struck by a hit and run motorist at Irving Park boulevard and Cumberland road with two companions.

The body of Mrs. Druella Downes, 24 years old, 4823 Sheridan road, who died at the County hospital of injuries received when she fell or was thrown from a moving automobile at Wabash avenue and Monroe street on Monday night, was sent to Saginaw, Mich., her home, yesterday. Meanwhile the inquest into her death was continued until Aug. 14 while the police endeavor to find Thomas Downes, her husband.

7 MEN, WOMAN
SEIZED; ACCUSED
IN 50 ROBBERIES

Seven men and a woman under arrest in Waukegan have been implicated in more than 50 robberies in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin during the last few months. Lake county authorities announced last night.

The prisoners are Joseph Hironimus, 52 years old, his son, Clifford, 18; Art Noll, 25; Frank Kutzler, 17; Arnold Regnor, 18; Tony Hanaka, 18, and another man and a woman, whose names were not divulged. Two other names are being sought, all having been implicated through the confessions of the elder Hironimus, his son, Clifford, and Noll.

Sheriff Lawrence Doolittle said the gang had been preying on filling stations, resorts, and small stores in Lake, McHenry, and Kenosha counties, Wis. They had stolen at least twenty cars in staging their holdups, the sheriff said. The captures followed a filling station robbery last Tuesday at Fox Lake.

4 Overcome by Refrigerant
in South Side Apartment

Four persons were overcome by a refrigerant yesterday when workmen were installing a mechanical refrigerator in an apartment at 6716 Merrill avenue opened the valve before the pipes had been connected. Those affected were Frank L. Nookes, his wife, Doris, their 4 year old daughter, Lois, and a guest, Mrs. A. Clark. Health department physicians reported that none were affected seriously.

MRS. NICHOLAS BRADY DENIES REPORTS SHE PLANS TO BECOME NUN

New York, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Answering a report to the effect that she sought to become a nun, Mrs. Nicholas Brady today called her New York representative from London and in a telephone conversation told him to say that the report was untrue.

The report, which appeared in a dispatch from the Rome correspondent of a morning newspaper, said that Mrs. Brady had an audience with Pope Pius XI. and he had agreed that if she wished to take vows, following a novitiate, she might found a religious order of her own and become the mother superior.

It is also said that Mrs. Brady, attached to the Brady household for some years, was reported as inquiring about a suitable site in Germany for the convent that Mrs. Brady would found with the vast fortune left by Mr. Brady, financier, who died recently.

Denial that Mrs. Brady would enter a convent came also from her sister, Mrs. John Cavanagh, in Norwalk, Conn., who informed the Associated Press that "such a story is preposterous." She had accompanied Mrs. Brady to Rome and was with her during the audience with Pope Pius. There was no suggestion that would warrant any such report, she said.

Has Large State Contracts.

In the past six years, Bolander stated, his company has completed a hundred miles of paving and grading for the state, and in 1930 it expects to complete some thirty-five miles of paving on state contracts aggregating $1,500,000. The company was organized in Minneapolis twenty-five years ago.

On the night of the explosion the widening work had proceeded to a point three miles south of Eola, near a junction of the E. J. & E. and B. & O. railways.

On the night of the explosion, a watchman for the Grove company, said he had made his rounds of the trucks and road making machinery and was seated about a hundred feet from the large crane when the explosion occurred. The crane was wrecked and pieces of flying metal struck all around Christiansen, but he was not injured.

Company Suffers $5,000 Loss.

Mr. Bolander said the explosion cost the company more than $5,000 in damage to the crane and loss from delayed work.

He had no trouble with labor prior to the explosion, Bolander said yesterday, although three workmen were Lake county laborers without union cards.

Three days after the explosion, Mr. Bolander said, the job suffered a one day tieup, the union men insisting that the three non-union laborers be taken off. The next day Bolander was visited by delegates from the Dupage county Laborers', Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' unions, he said, who suggested that he hire their men.

Using a time fuse late at night, bombers wrecked a contractor's $10,000 crane near Aurora recently in a plot which the builder's representative is inclined to attribute to labor troubles.

The bombing took place on the night of July 25, according to Eric Bolander, Illinois manager for the contractors, the S. J. Groves & Sons company of Naperville. Bolander's office is at Libertyville and he is in charge of the widening of a stretch on Route 18 (Ogden avenue) extending seven miles eastward from a point near the Aurora city limits. The job is being done on a state contract at a cost of $180,000.

MAYOR THOMPSON REACHES NANTUCKET; BRINGS RAINSTORM

Nantucket, Mass., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago reached Nantucket Island tonight in the midst of the first rainstorm that Nantucket has experienced since March. He was met at the wharf by Mrs. Thompson and the chauffeur. They drove immediately to their summer home on Brant Point, overlooking the harbor, where a party of friends were awaiting the mayor to extend him greetings to Nantucket. The mayor's car has had the Illinois plates removed and Massachusetts plates, bearing a double thirteen, 1313, greeted the mayor's eye.

$11,704,000 SALE WINDS UP WORK OF STRAWN GROUP

All Certificates Ready to Be Redeemed.

The sale of $11,704,000 of tax anticipation warrants yesterday by the executive committee of the Strawn citizens' committee disposed of the balance of the warrants held by the Cook County Taxpayers' Warrent trust. The sale enables the committee to wind up the affairs of the trust and subscribers are to be asked to present their certificates for surrender and cancellation.

The warrant trust was created by Silas H. Strawn and members of his citizens' committee in February of this year in an effort to raise the city county school board, and sanitary district out of the financial mire. A large number of taxpayers subscribed to an interest in the trust, which in turn brought tax anticipation warrants so that the local government could obtain cash to carry on its functions.

Drive Headed by Clarke.

A drive for funds was headed by Philip R. Clarke, president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, who was selected as chairman of the citizens' tax certificate committee. Committees were appointed that solicited subscriptions to the trust until approximately $74,500,000 had been pledged.

When the subscriptions totaled $11,704,000 the executive committee began disbursements to the local government, so that the $43.86 public employees, whose salary payments had been considerably delayed, could be paid. These disbursements, until the time when financial relief was provided by the special session of the general assembly in June, totaled approximately $53,000,000, or approximately 75 percent of the amount subscribed to the trust.

All Money Is Returned.

Subscribers to the trust were asked to advance money as the disbursements to the local governments were made. In this manner the subscribers advanced only the $11,704,000 which was invested in tax warrants. Prior to July 14 the committee had advanced about $41,500,000 of the warrants bought, enabling it to make a 75 percent distribution back to the subscribers. The sale yesterday enables the committee to return the balance of the money advanced.

BRITTEN REVEALS SECRET PLAN FOR COAST GUARD

Eight 6-Inch
Ships Called

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

PARIS, Aug. 8.—(Special.)—The terms of the London naval conference will never be built, revealed tonight by Commander Britten of the British navy, who is in Paris after crossing the Channel for a vacation.

Under the terms of the London conference, the United States navy is to build 14,500 tons of 6 inch gun cruisers in 1931. At present America has such cruisers in the Omaha class, of 10,000 tons, and the 13,000 tons of the Tennessee class.

BRITTEN REVEALS SECRET PLAN TO FOREGO CRUISERS

Eight 6-Inch Gun Treaty
Ships Called Useless.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
PARIS, Aug. 8.—The eight 6 inch gun cruisers allowed to America under the terms of the London naval treaty will never be built. This was revealed tonight by Congressman Fred Britten of Illinois, who arrived today
in Paris after crossing on the Leviathan for a vacation in Europe.

Under the terms of the treaty, resulting ratified by both America and Britain, the United States is allowed to build one or two of the six inch gun cruisers in commission, those of the Omaha class, so that an additional 12,000 tons might be built under the treaty.

Let's British Rule Sea.
According to Mr. Britten, the house
naval committee, of which he is chairman, has secretly decided not to carry out the construction of the authorized cruisers, preferring to let Great Brittain have the supremacy of the waves
in the next six or seven years rather than waste the taxpayers' money on a type of ship which the committee considers wholly useless to the national needs of America.

U. S. Creeping Up
Torival Britain
In Sea Shipping

Figures Show Jump in American Marine.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Aug. 8.—Tremendous increase in American shipping during
the sixteen years since Europe was plunged into war, most of it at the expense of Great Britain and Ireland,
is shown in the new edition of Lloyd's
Register for the year 1930-31.

Figures in the shipping directory
of the world show that in the last
thirty-two years Great Britain has
sunk as a maritime power from a position
controlling fifty-four per cent of
all steam and motor tonnage afloat
to a place now fixed at 29.5 per cent.

U. S. Takes Big Jump.
On the other hand, the United States has sprung from an insignificant place rated at 3.8 per cent of the world's tonnage in 1892, the beginning of the thirty-two year period,
and at 4.5 per cent in 1914, sixteen
years later, to one second only to the
mistress of the seas with bottoms
afloat amounting to 13.7 per cent of the world's registered craft.

These figures refer to seagoing tonnage alone. They do not take into account 2,458,000 tons in America possible, together with the tremendous advance in aviation that followed. These engines are without superiors anywhere in the world and are produced
by the United States.

There still is a slight decrease in
total tonnage in America. This is accounted for by the fact that during the war the United States created a
new overnight a merchant marine,
but failed to replace many vessels
broken up during the last four years.

Our seagoing tonnage is placed at 10,
640,000 gross tons. This compares with 11,392,000 tons in 1926 and with figures
for intervening years exceeding 11,
000,000 tons annually.

The gross tonnage of Great Britain
and Ireland for 1929 is 9,272,000,
for the dominions 2,788,000. The world
total is 69,607,644 tons.

Great Britain and Ireland are not alone in showing decreases in the last three decades. The leadership of both Germany and Japan has disappeared. The United States have displaced 3.8 per cent and 4.5 per cent in 1898 and 1914, respectively. Germany
shows 8.4 per cent and 11.3 per cent
at France 5 per cent and 4.2 per cent. They now rate 6.2 per cent and 6.1 per cent, respectively.

Increase in Motor Tonnage.
One of the most interesting trends in the maritime world disclosed by the register's tabulations is the steady advance of motor ship tonnage, and the continued disappearance of bottoms afloat under sail.

During the last twelve months world
statistics show an increase of 148,176 tons in steam tonnage, whereas motor tonnage increased by 1,458,235
tons. Sailing ships fell off $3,079 tons.
The net world increase is fixed at 1,119,653 tons in 1929.

During the six years preceding
the war the steam and motor tonnage increase was 133 per cent, whereas
the conflict reduced that figure during the last sixteen years to 10 per cent. Nor is the world likely to regain its pre-war pace in shipbuilding
for some time, the register indicates,
since tonnage under construction now amounts to 3,057,700 tons, as compared with 551,100 tons in June, 1913. A general dearth of orders in English shipyards is reported.

Belgium Plans to Build.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
BRUSSELS, Aug. 8.—The kingdom of Belgium, which has about as many inhabitants as New York City, will build itself a bigger and better merchant marine if parliament adopts a bill recently drawn up by the Belgian government. The government, bankers, and shipping chiefs together are called on to set aside a fund of about $4,000,000 to help build modern Belgian vessels to ply between Antwerp
and almost any part of the globe.

With Great Britain netting some $25,000,000 and Norway around $8,
000,000 a year in freight rates, Belgium believes she might make at least as much money as Norway if only her wharves get enough funds to start building additional ships. The present total of the Belgian merchant marine is 163 vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 515,000. Nearly 40 per cent of those ships are more than 20 years old and new hard service during the submarine war from 1914-1918.

U. S. CREEPING UP TORIVAL BRITAIN IN SEA SHIPPING

Figures Show Jump in American Marine.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Aug. 8.—Tremendous increase in American shipping during
the sixteen years since Europe was
plunged into war, most of it at the expense of Great Britain and Ireland,
is shown in the new edition of Lloyd's
Register for the year 1930-31.

Figures in the shipping directory
of the world show that in the last
thirty-two years Great Britain has
sunk as a maritime power from a position
controlling fifty-four per cent of
all steam and motor tonnage afloat
to a place now fixed at 29.5 per cent.

U. S. Takes Big Jump.
On the other hand, the United States has sprung from an insignifi-
the world's tonnage in 1892, the beginning of the thirty-two year period,
and at 4.5 per cent in 1914, sixteen
years later, to one second only to the
mistress of the seas with bottoms
afloat amounting to 13.7 per cent of
the world's registered craft.

These figures refer to seagoing tonnage alone. They do not take into account 2,458,000 tons in America possible, together with the tremendous advance in aviation that followed. These
engines are without superiors any-
where in the world and are produced
by the United States.

There still is a slight decrease in
total tonnage in America. This is accounted for by the fact that during
the war the United States created a
new overnight a merchant marine,
but failed to replace many vessels
broken up during the last four years.

Our seagoing tonnage is placed at 10,
640,000 gross tons. This compares with 11,392,000 tons in 1926 and with figures
for intervening years exceeding 11,
000,000 tons annually.

The gross tonnage of Great Britain
and Ireland for 1929 is 9,272,000,
for the dominions 2,788,000. The world
total is 69,607,644 tons.

Great Britain and Ireland are not
alone in showing decreases in the last three decades. The leadership of
both Germany and Japan has disappeared. The United States have displaced 3.8 per cent and 4.5 per cent in

Coolidge View on U. S. Plane Engines Disputed by Navy

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—American airplane engines are the best in the world, officials of the navy department asserted today in taking exception to a signed article by former President Calvin Coolidge which conveyed the impression that the United States had been forced to accept a second place position in aircraft engine development. In his statement printed today, Mr. Coolidge said "a naval officer reports that the best aircraft engine is made abroad."
He added that the United States cannot afford any second place.

In their comments naval officers revealed that the bureau of aeronautics is experimenting on a heavy oil engine for use in airships and hopes to have it ready for installation in the second of the two dirigibles the navy is planning to build.

Mr. Coolidge's statement concerning aviation engines, Ernest Lee Jahneke, acting secretary of the navy, said.
"I believe the navy is regarded as largely responsible for the creation
and success of the air-cooled engine,
which made Lindbergh's flight possible, together with the tremendous advance in aviation that followed. These
engines are without superiors any-
where in the world and are produced
by the United States."

"There are in existence abroad several engines of 1,000 horsepower and above which are superior to ours.
However, in the lower horsepower,
ours for every day usage, our American water cooled engines have no superiors."

SEEK FREEDOM
FOR RICH, IN FOR LIFE FOR RAPE

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 8.—[Special.]
—A new attempt to obtain freedom for Arthur C. Rich, son of a wealthy Battle Creek [Mich.] family, who is serving a life sentence in state prison
at Jackson on a charge of raping Miss Louise Kling, a Battle Creek college
co-ed, was made today when a delegation of citizens appeared before Gov.
Fred W. Green asking executive clemency for Rich, who was sentenced in 1926.

The governor declined to disclose
what transpired at the conference.
Members of the delegation were B. J.
Onen, attorney for Rich in the trial;
Louis Griesell, Battle Creek business man, and Charles Green, former mayor and Calhoun political leader.

LIVERPOOL CITY
OFFICIAL SPURNS
TOAST TO KING

LIVERPOOL, England, Aug. 8.—[Sp-cial.]—City Councillor John Braddock refuses to stand up for King George when the monarch is toasted.
"My action is deliberate," Mr. Braddock explained. "I believe in consistency. When I led the unemployed
we sang the 'Red Flag' at the conclusion of our meeting. Now that I am a member of the city council I am not going to have it said of me that I now stand up with my colleagues and toast the king."

As England is a free country, Mr.
body interferes with Braddock when he remains seated despite the fact that every one else honors the king by standing during the royal toast.

THUNDER OF POPE HITS METHODIST COLLEGE IN ROME

Charges Institution Hides Under False Label.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
ROME, Aug. 8.—The Vatican today
made a scathing attack on the Methodist college in Rome, known as the International College of Monte Mario, which was branded as being a center
of pernicious propaganda for undermining the Catholic faith in Italy and lacking the true qualifications of an educational institution.

The Methodist college is situated on top of Monte Mario, a hill overlooking the Vatican. This fact alone has been qualified in the past as objectionable. The college is directed by the Rev. S. W. Irwin.

Official Organ Makes Charge.
The Vatican attack on the college,
which follows the pontiff's decision yesterday to build new churches in Rome, and his recent allocation of pressing alarm at Protestant penetration in Italy, comes tonight in the form of an article in the official Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano.

The Methodist college is charged with being itself insidiously behind the name of "International college" in order to abuse the credulity of the public.

According to Osservatore Romano, obstacles are placed in the way of some 70 Catholic students in the college from attending mass on Sundays.

At the same time, according to the article, the students are allowed much freedom to attend picture shows and social functions, and to indulge in sports, indicating that pedagogic discipline and control is lacking. Osservatore Romano says that this means that the college is not an educational institution but a propaganda center.

Continuing to deplore the Protestant offensive in Italy, Osservatore Romano declares that in the Catholic zone
recently several Protestant "jackals" made their appearance, trying to spread Protestant propaganda under the guise of hygienic and financial aid to the quake victims.

Church Backs Fascism.
The Vatican paper is especially bitter against Protestant missionaries working in the province of Puglia.
Many of the people are deluded by their tracts, says the paper.

After a further attack on Protestant publications in other parts of Italy, Osservatore Romano warns Italians that they cannot be good fascists if they accept the doctrines of Methodism, and says that the acceptance of Protestant ideas of religion is against Premier Mussolini's reconstructive program, thus indicating that negation of religion means loyalty to Premier Mussolini.

Fess Says Democrats Incite Foreign Hostility to Tariff

Charges Institution Hides Under False Label.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Senator Simon D. Fess [Rep., O.] today signaled his election to the chairmanship of the Republican national committee with a defense of the Hawley-Smoot tariff and denunciation of "subtle" Democratic propaganda which he declared seeks to stir foreign antagonism against the American protective policy.

Under his leadership, the Ohio senator asserted, the Republican organization headquarters here will immediately embark on a nationwide educational campaign to combat the flood of anti-tariff propaganda which the Democratic national committee has been spreading for more than a year with the intention of making the tariff the dominant issue in the forthcoming congressional campaign.

Will Tour Country.
Although he admitted that widespread unemployment and general industrial depression had caused unrest that may react against Republican nominations, Fess confidently predicted that the Republican majorities in the house and the senate will not be upset in the November elections. He himself, he disclosed, will devote his time until election in establishing personal contacts throughout the country
while details of the Washington headquarters are placed in the way of his assistant, who, it was announced today, will resign his post as revenue commissioner and assume his new duties on Aug. 15.

In his statement Fess predicted that the "subtle campaign methods now in vogue to stir foreign antagonism toward revenue legislation in the interest of the American workman and American agriculture . . . for partisan and selfish purposes will be rebuked
when the inevitable resentment of our people will surely be forthcoming."

Same Goal as Former Tariff.
"Every campaign," he asserted,
"conducted on behalf of foreign ruther than American interests has had but one result. The present will be no exception. Examination of the recent law demonstrates it to be designed, like former protective measures, to increase foreign trade, both in imports and exports. We will continue to import the needs we cannot produce, two-thirds of which, under the present law, will come in duty free. We will also continue to supply the world with the goods they most import in increased quantities."

The increasing tendency of American producers to establish plants in competing countries, to employ cheap
labor to supply the domestic home market, rather than the employment of higher paid American labor, may be, Fess declared, "a subject of further legislation, as it certainly will be of investigation."

DAKOTA BANK BANDITS
HUNTED IN 3 STATES;
LOOT NEARLY $75,000

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 8.—[Sp-cial.]—Three states joined today in a hunt for five bandits who descended on the Dakota National bank in a daring daylight holdup yesterday and escaped with nearly $75,000 in cash and bonds.
Rewards totaling $1,500 were offered for the men's capture.

A check of the lot revealed today that the bandits had taken $23,364 in cash and $50,000 in non-negotiable bonds. Officials said the bonds were registered and therefore worthless to the robbers.

Sheriffs in all parts of North Dakota and adjoining sections of Minnesota and South Dakota were on the lookout for the bandits, who are believed to have fled into South Dakota. Three airplanes used in an attempt to trace the bandits on shortly after the holdup were unsuccessful.

Virginia Lawyers to Vote

HOOVER IS URGED TO SPEED ACTION ON ROUTE TO SEA

Ask Early Completion of St. Lawrence Project.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 8.—[Sp-cial.]—President Hoover was urged to open at once negotiations for a treaty with Canada looking to early construction of the St. Lawrence waterway to the sea, in a resolution adopted today by the Great Lakes Harbor association.

The decision of the United States Supreme court in the Chicago diversion case was accepted "with a spirit of gratitude and with a sense of pride in the exemplification of justice made by the highest tribunal in the land."

The Resolution in Part.
The preamble of the resolution said:
"The progress of the proposed St.
Lawrence route to the sea has reached a stage where all doubts as to its ultimate realization are dispelled.

With the completion of the new Welland canal and the operation now under consideration in the Canadian section of the St. Lawrence, two-thirds of the entire project is well in hand.

The international section, subject to international treaty, the sentiment on both sides of the border warrants the belief
the great waterway connecting the great lakes with the Atlantic ocean will become a magnificent reality.

Urges Immediate Action.
"We respectfully press upon the President of the United States and secretary of state and the prime minister and secretary of state of Canada
the urgency of initiating at once the diplomatic negotiations leading toward the promotion of a treaty providing for the early construction of the St.
Lawrence deep waterway," the resolution said.

"The realization of the proposed outlet to the sea not only is earnestly sought by the agricultural interests of the two countries, but at the same time the early beginning of the project promises a temporary but important relief in the unemployment situation."

All present officers were re-elected.
Cleveland was selected for the 1931
convention.

FIGHTING SHIPS SCRAPPED

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—More than 400,000 tons of fighting ships in commission on Jan. 1 of this year will have been scrapped or otherwise disposed of before the expiration of the London naval treaty.

As disclosed at the navy department
today, this tonnage will include destroyers, second line cruisers and obsolete submarines ordered disposed of this year as well as battleships, destroyers, and submarines which are to be scrapped under the London naval agreement.

Inquiry today disclosed that since
Jan. 1 Secretary of the Navy Charles Franklin Adams has disposed of 171,544 tons of obsolete warships. A total of 1,533,232 tons, against the figure of
1,119,653 tons in 1929.

During the six years preceding

increase was 133 per cent, whereas

ELECTRIFICATION AND MODERN TERMINALS.

THE TRIBUNE has filed a complaint with the Illinois commerce commission against 31 passenger carrying railroads entering Chicago. The complaint is intended to bring about the modernization of the terminals of these railroads and the electrification of the rights of way through the suburban zone. The commission is requested to require each of the railroads promptly to state its plans for terminals and electrification and to estimate the costs of the work in detail.

When these facts have been laid before the commission it is requested to issue an order listing the improvements to be made and fixing a time in which the work is to be completed.

THE TRIBUNE has resolved to undertake this task because no other spokesman for Chicago which has the resources and is otherwise in a position to make the fight is free of entanglements with railroad owners and railroad financiers.

Over a period of many years Chicago has been hoping and expecting that the railroads would move of their own initiative. The accomplishments have been disappointing, to say the least. The North Western and Union stations have been built, but the locomotives of the railroads using these terminals continue to pour smoke over Chicago. The Illinois Central has electrified its suburban lines to its profit, but with these exceptions the terminal situation has continued unchanged and unimproved for generations during which the population of the city and its environs has grown by millions. Years of negotiation by city officials and citizens' committees have been fruitless.

Meanwhile the same railroads, which have refused to electrify in Chicago have spent prodigious sums in improving less important terminals. The Pennsylvania is spending $100,000,000 in electrifying 1,500 miles of track between New York and Wilmington, Del. Cleveland, Philadelphia, and Detroit among other cities have electrified terminals. If the investment in these cities was justified it is difficult to believe that similar expenditures in Chicago would not yield at least an equal return.

Pleading and argument, official and unofficial, have failed, but fortunately Chicago is not without a remedy. The state commission has broad regulatory powers which can be exercised in this connection. These powers have now been invoked.

ROADSIDE BEAUTY.

What the Europeans call tourism is entering into American policy as well as that of the European countries which are profiting substantially by it. Wide awake American states or lesser communities are realizing that beauty pays financially as well as in the high dividends of esthetic enjoyment. Therefore laws and regulations and even appropriations for its protection are multiplying. Of course the main objective in such a movement—and it has become general and definite enough to be called a movement—is the blight of roadside billboards. Too many million Americans have toured abroad and habitually motor at home to suffer patiently the intrusion of billboards on their lovely American landscape. There are few impressions of foreign travel more significant, general and impressive to traveling Americans than the absence of these excrescences, and there should be, therefore, a strong force of sentiment supporting measures of relief in any state which has become tourist conscious.

North Carolina, thriving and progressive state, has just had the benefit of a survey of its roadside conditions, made by the National Council for the Protection of Roadside Beauty and financed by the American Nature association. The survey reported on all phases of roadside beautification, such as highway planning, billboards, hot dog stands, filling stations, auto cemeteries that unsightly dump so often located without consideration of public taste, tree cutting by careless public service companies, etc. Among other conditions the survey found that on route 10, the "Main street" of North Carolina, there were 2,564 billboards on 283 miles, or an average of one every 13 1/2 miles. The innumerable "snipe" signs were not counted. The point of view of the new association is that the American people spend a billion dollars a year on their highways and want the full return on their investment. Motoring for pleasure is an important part of this return and ought not to be spoiled for the selfish profit of business which has other and better methods of reaching the public.

So a deliberate movement to reach every state is well under way and deserves the active support of the press and all existing associations, national and local, for the preservation of natural beauty and outdoor recreation. This should be an important feature of the general policy of conservation, and the powerful organizations devoted to the defense and development of that policy should give roadside beautification attention. Especially we think the effort of the new national conservation society, the Isaac Walton league, local civic enterprise and spirit are the most effective agencies for conservation at this stage, and the preservation and development of roadside beautification can be best maintained by local organizations. Of course the propaganda of a national body like the National Council for the Preservation of Roadside Beauty is necessary to waken and assist local initiative, advise as to organizations, legislation, etc., and keep the local agencies acquainted with what is being accomplished elsewhere. But local pride and public spirit will create the effective agencies for actual accomplishment.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL should address organizations like the Isaac Walton league, the Garden Club of America and its state clubs, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and the various automobile clubs and associations to interest their membership in the formation of roadside beautification committees, either within their own organizations or independent of them. There is plenty of machinery in active existence now for the organization of local public spirit to advance roadside beautification and protection.

THE INDIGNATION
OF MR. HANNAH.

The President's assertion that our course of action at the London conference and subsequent acceptance of its fruits "has dismissed from the mind of the world any notion that the United States entertains ideas of aggression, imperial power or exploitation of foreign nations" seems not very brilliantly illustrated by current comment on American affairs in the British press or public utterances. Especially unconvincing is Mr. I. C. Hannah, lecturer at the University of Cambridge, who told his hearers that "America is a nation which cannot govern itself, but thinks it can govern the rest of the world." He reports that "America is now building up a new empire—financial domination of all parts of the world"—and that Britain is "patrolling and policing" a great part of it for American trade.

If Mr. Hannah were a lone voice calling out in a wilderness of British ignorance of international affairs or British inattention to its own, we might pass his protest as one of those exceptions which prove Mr. Hoover's view of the happy result of the treaty. But Mr. Hannah said nothing that isn't being said or implied repeatedly in British comment, public and private, and in spite of Mr. Hoover's optimism we venture to predict that the saying will go on. And in the measure that Mr. Hannah is within the facts his indignation is natural enough. That any other people should presume to build up an empire or aspire to financial domination has always seemed to the British mind an inexcusable offense against the force-drawn order of things, as Spain, Holland, France, and Germany learned in impressive succession. We may plead humbly that what Mr. Hannah calls domination is the tending of American money by the billion to nations in need of it, but that would only expose our ignorance of the great principle which imposes its duty on Britain alone, or in default of her performance through mishap or temporary condition, we might be reminded that we ought to give, not lead.

But even more interesting to us in Mr. Hannah's contribution to Anglo-American friendship is his remark that Britain is patrolling and policing a great part of the world for American trade. This obviously is a gross injustice, which those of us who have not felt moved to applaud the results of our various efforts at naval limitation will join Mr. Hannah in deploring. It has all along been our conviction that the United States ought to put itself in a position to do the "patrolling and policing for American trade." And we would be Mr. Hannah and like-minded protestants to credit us, though in the midst of his indignation, with an unwillingness to accept the sacrifice of this ability through thrust upon us at each conference by the altruism of the British admiralty and government. We share fully Mr. Hannah's regret that Britain is "patrolling and policing a great part of the world for American trade," and we hope that in future conferences our representatives, having had their attention called to this fact, will see that the injustice is corrected.

Editorial of the Day

THE Dwindling "LONG STRAW ARMY."

Since days of its earliest development, the northwest at this season of the year has looked forward to the coming of the "long straw army." It was an aggregation of itinerant laborers coming here to work in the grain fields in harvest and threshing in a voluntary response to a seasonal labor problem. Its annual invasion was looked upon tolerantly. It took possession of freight trains bound for the harvest field, it haggled over wages. In a brief revel of independence it sometimes demanded that the farmer bring in his fields if the wages offered were not to its liking.

It kindled its campfires in a thousand jungles and, following the natural law of supply and demand, gravitated with ease from one peak of congestion in the labor market to another.

Latterly its movement was directed by federal agencies; railroads made such concessions in the way of reduced fares that no self-respecting worker could afford to be a tramp. In its ranks there were many veterans. In instances they returned annually to the same farms for periods of 20 years and longer. If it had undesirable camp followers, it brought to the northwest many honest men who served it well. Today its community jungles—and every town in the northwest now are strangely deserted. Usually there is not a sign of life. Where there is, it is manifested in a few old men full of reminiscences and more moved by the habits of a lifetime than any urgent desire to work. The real "long straw army" comes in a modern automobile, with money in its pocket, resourceful enough to move from place to place until it finds a location to its liking. It is not as large as it once was because farm mechanization is steadily reducing opportunity for transient employment on the farms. The combine, the tractor, and other farm machines are reducing the ranks of the "long straw army." As privates in its ranks, thousands of today's successful farmers had their first glimpse of the northwest and formed the decision to remain and help develop it. It had its day and it served its purpose. The machine is musing it out.

HEADS NEED COVERING.

A FEW minutes ago we passed a mother taking her five months baby for a perambulator ride. The baby wore but one garment—a bathing suit. The head, face, arms, shoulders, some of the upper chest, and practically all of the legs were uncovered. The perambulator was without a top and the baby wore no hat or other shield for the head, face, and eyes. He was a husky looking youngster, a trifle too fat, but otherwise fit for a frolic or whatever offered. His skin was nicely tanned. He lay on his back with eyes closed and was presumably fast asleep.

This mother knows of the good effects of sunlight, of the sterility of the skin, and how sunlight changes them to vitamins, and possibly other substances that promote hardness, stimulate growth, prevent rickets, and build up resistance to disease. Her method of garnering a few bottles of sunshine tonic for her young one was right in every particular save one.

A block further down the street we passed another mother with a perambulator. This time there were two children, possibly twins, and in the second year. They were dressed about the same way, including the absence of hats. Let us add the official weather record for the approximate time and place was: "Temperature 82, bright sunshine, no clouds."

What was wrong with the methods? The exposed heads. Had the first baby's eyes been opened he would have looked, or tried to look, directly at the sun. The retina is far more sensitive to sunlight than the skin. It produces blindness to light action long before the skin begins to burn. Glare produces blindness that goes by more than one name. Children given ultra-violet treatment always wear covered glasses. In several colored goggles are a part of the required equipment for every worker. Even if the eyes are not harmed by exposure to glare a penalty of nervousness and irritability may be exacted. It is probable that the baby's eyes were closed, and the head to bright sunlight—this aside from the harm to the eyes. In hot climates the whites recognize the need of keeping the head covered.

THE USE OF INSULIN.

Mrs. L. F. writes:
1. I would like to have you write an article some time on diabetes and the use of insulin.
2. Do you know where I may obtain Dr. Duff's book on diabetes?
3. Do you think a person, 30 years old, who stays on a proper diet and takes insulin twice a day at present, may overcome this disease in a few years or there has been no diabetes in the family?
4. Will the blood sugar ever be normal again?
5. I have been doctoring and taking insulin for six months, which is as long as I have known that I had it. My doctor thinks I have had it at least a year and perhaps longer. I have had wonderful results with insulin so far as building myself up is concerned and feel fine except that I am nervous and do not sleep well at night. What do you think causes that?
6. Where can I get books on diabetes that give the correct diet and food values?

REPLY.
1. I write on the subject from time to time.
2. A book for "Diabetes," by Dr. R. Duff, published by the author at South Lancaster, Mass., and costs $1.50 per copy.
3. It is possible to retake insulin, bringing about a cure, properly speaking, in some cases. Most cases can be put in balance and live on a diet of insulin with further progress of the disease. There are the more serious cases.
4. That is true.
5. I wonder if you are taking rather too much insulin and you suffer at night from sugar hunger?
6. Go to any bookstore selling medical books or having medical book catalogs and buy one or more of the following:
"Food for the Diabetic" by Dr. Duff.
"A Diabetic Manual," by Joslin.
"A Primer for Diabetic Patients," by Wilder.
"A Book for Us Diabetics," by Duff.
"Diabetic Manual for Patients," by Joslin.

ADVERSE POSSESSION.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—(Legal Friend of the People.)—I, can a man who is raising his house on your side of the lot without notifying you?
2. This man claims I am ten inches over on his lot.
3. The line division has been that way for forty years.
4. I have paid taxes for the last seven years.
5. He is not entitled to come over your side of the boundary without your consent.
6. The present owner of the boundary is seriously in dispute, is for the parties to share the cost of a survey and agree to accept its result.
7. The limitation period is 20 years, but special facts might extend the period.
8. The 7 year period does not apply unless the claimant has paper title to the strip in question.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

NOW, HERE IS A PROBLEM!

Talk about your most embarrassing moment! Two policemen were on duty at the street intersection, both of the South Park force. One was a young, tall, handsome copper, and the other was short, middle aged, and quite grouchy. As our machine glided up to the crossing the young, tall, handsome copper motioned for it to keep right on going. The short, middle aged, and quite grouchy copper motioned to stop. What to do? We decided to obey the young, tall, and handsome copper. We glided on. Immediately the short, middle aged, and quite grouchy copper gave us a fine bawling out. It's a wonder he didn't give us a ticket. Now we are a young driver, trying to get on in the world with our car. But when two policemen of equal rank and importance issue contrary orders, which one do you obey? Quick, tell us! It may happen again.

ON A SUMMER NIGHT.

Now the dark trees flow upward to the sky,
The white stars thro' against the erulant air;
How shall I live in heaven when I die,
Who find the earth too beautiful to bear?
O God whose face is as a thousand suns
Flaming amid the turning of the spheres,
Not only in heaven Thy living water runs,
Not only death shall wipe away our tears;
I thank Thee that with rose and shadow and star
We are held apart from death a little while,
Thinking to be forever as we are,
Lingering together, sharing word and smile—
Close to the earth our deepest joy is bound,
Born like the rose, and rooted in the ground.

DOROTHY R. KISSLING.

WE ARE LOYAL supporters of the white colored class, but why, when we tell them to send our purchases to the Ambassador East, do they insist on spelling it Embassador? In the course of years we've had hundreds of parcels delivered at our home and never once have they spelled it any other way but Embassador. Dear friends, before you drive us quite mad, would you please spell it Ambassador at least once—just once? This is not a whim on our part; old Noah Webster stands right behind us. He admits that the word Embassador exists, but he puts it at the foot of the page as a variant of ambassador. But why vary the word?

THE LAST one of the tree sitters is down, claiming a record of 504 hours up in the leafy branches. Wait till that boy goes back to school in September—'have to sit on those old hard benches five hours every day; it's a doggoned shame!'

The Treasure.

Dick: Would you speak of the Jewels of Ophir? Of the vaulted treasures of Kensington? Or of—but, in a moment of confidence, Sir Gareth (a very young but a very true knight), homeward bound from adventures that lie beyond the garden gate and close to the Forest of the Sunflowers, where the lifting bushes come to rest and to feed—and to quiverously chide the Thrush of the Broken Wing, whispered to me of wondrous things, and so, having skirted the far-flung screen of the jessamine, which, as you know, is the Kingdom of the Hummers, brought me to the acacia and, as he drew aside the lowest branch, said, "there"—and with care and precision revealed the things he had hidden—a feather that a yellow-hammer had carelessly dropped on the lawn near the bird bath, a handle from one of Tiny Jean's (but you mustn't tell choice tea cups, an arrowhead that the neighbor's boy had found in his grandfather's potato patch, three seed pods from the oriental poppies, a glorious button from the Sick Soldier's overseas cap, the top to Aunt Helen's fountain pen, and a burnished piece of copper that no doubt at one time had been Queen Guinevere's hand mirror, and a butterfly graven in gold on a piece of slate, and a shell that shags low like the wind . . . and so having permitted me to touch and to handle them, Sir Gareth drew back the branch of the acacia and said, "They're for mother." And was it the Thrush of the Broken Wing, there in the thicket, or the unaging voice of James Whitcomb Riley, there on the crest of the South Wind, singing of the "blossoms of the heart"?

THAT FEEL DOWN IN STREET.

SNEEZING STEVE writes to us to protest against joking about hay fever. "If you had hay fever dem yer eyes," says Sneezing Steve, "you wouldn't think it was any dam joke." Steve, you're right—but in these doggoned dog days—well, Steve, humor is mighty scarce—what with congress adjourned, the high cost of living getting higher, prohibition turned to ghastly tragedy, and drought still getting droughtier. Hay fever is about the only joke left, Steve; and while we hate to ragweed you about it, what are we going to do for innocent and clean sport, hey?

INTROIBO.

Let me live out the youth which me remains,
And let me sip each moment to the full;
Spilled wine too soon becomes but purple stains,
And life as soon becomes a thing that's dull.
I care not if it soon may be after all
Some purpose to this maddening dream of life:
Drunk with the wine of youth I'd rather fall
Into eternal sleep in shroud of shame
Than live out the allotted span in strife
To win a kingdom or an empty name.

THE PHANTOM LOVER.

LAGNIAPPE.

ATTENTION, you Pollyanna boys! Sir Denistoun Burney, commander of the R-100, now at Toronto, says he was offered $100,000 by an American millionaire to carry him as a passenger in a special trip to New York. And the railroad fare, to say nothing of what it would cost to go in a bus, is ever so much less than that. And yet we've got people who are willing to fork out one hundred thousand bucks (a bunnard grand) just to ride in a dirigible from Toronto to Broadway. Add Good News of Good Times! Prosperity! Wow!

THE PUBLIC is fickle! Only yesterday afternoon as we sat gasping in the window and the great waves of red hot heat came surging in we thought with a bitter smile of those foolish days when everybody thought Dick Byrd was a hero for staying two years at the South Pole. R. H. L.

SKETCHES OF THE NEWS

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 9, 1914.

LONDON.—Conflicting reports are being received in regard to the fate of Liege. From Berlin, by way of Amsterdam, comes the news that it was officially announced there that the Germans had captured the city. The latest reports from Brussels, as well as from French sources, said the Belgian defenses were still intact and that the French supporting army was near Liege.

BRUSSELS.—The minister of war announces that the German army has captured the city of Liege, which was the last stronghold of the French army in Belgium.

PARIS.—It was officially announced at the ministry of war that the French army has captured the city of Liege, which was the last stronghold of the German army in Belgium.

ST. PETERSBURG.—It is officially stated that Germany has lost 100 men killed and many wounded and prisoners in two days' fighting near Eydukhnen, East Prussia.

LONDON.—The admiralty has announced that England has accepted the Canadian offer of the cruisers Niobe and Rainbow to protect commerce and also the offer of an expeditionary force of 20,000 men.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 9, 1900.

CHICAGO.—Evidence has just come to the surface to show that the board of trustees of the sanitary district of Chicago needlessly expended at least $30,000 on the lock recently completed on the Illinois and Michigan canal on 27th street, south of Ashland.

This large amount of the taxpayers' money was paid out, according to ward leaders and constituents of trustees, political lines not figuring in the transaction, and little or nothing was received by the public in return.

CHICAGO.—With previous records for the duration of hot weather broken, Chicago will proceed today to establish a weather mark which citizens will hope to see untouched for years to come. The thermometer reached 92 on the fifth day of the heat wave. Four more died from the heat and twenty were prostrated.

MADISON.—Robert M. La Follette was nominated for governor by the Wisconsin Republican state convention.

INDIANAPOLIS.—William J. Bryan and Adlai E. Stevenson were officially notified that they had been nominated by the Democratic party for President and Vice President of the United States. Mr. Bryan pledged himself that if elected he will immediately convene congress to give independence to the Philippines.

CHICAGO.—Returns from the United States census enumeration in Chicago will show this city to have a population of between 1,695,000 and 1,697,000, a gain since 1890, on the basis of the latter figure, of 597,150.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 9, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—Efforts have been made to induce Gen. Grant to recommend the pardon of several general officers in the rebel army from Virginia to enable them to participate in the civil affairs of the state. In the case of Gen. Kemper, speaker of the Virginia rebel legislature, Gen. Grant was particularly importuned, it being claimed that Kemper was desirous of reentering the political arena for the purpose of impressing upon the people the necessity of heartily acceding to the new order of things.

EDITORIAL.—"A call to volunteers to clear out Mexico and deliver the government over to the hands of the Mexican people would be followed by an instant rush of a quarter of a million men to the various rendezvous," says one prophetic authority. Another says: "In a single campaign of four months we could destroy every man of the French army and kick Maximilian into the gulf at Vera Cruz." And both assertions are probably true.

INCIDENT AT THE FRONTIER.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The finest argument against the Volstead act that has ever presented itself to me was the treatment two women relatives and myself received at Rouses Point, N. Y., upon our return from a visit to Canada, including a religious pilgrimage to Ste. Anne de Beaupre.

After exhibiting everything we had purchased in Canada, having our car and baggage gone over most thoroughly, the three of us were escorted to the custom house by an officer who turned us over to a woman officer. Our handbags and our bodies were gone over most carefully in search for something that they thought belonged to them. Our question as to why we were being subjected to this degradation and humiliation remained unanswered. Decent women, made to stand up before a locked door, with their hands raised before them! Can you Americans picture such a scene in America, the land of the free and the home of the brave?

In future it will always be to me the land of the bold and the home of the brave if innocent people are to be subjected to the same treatment that criminals receive. It's about time for the women of America to awaken to the fact that America is fast becoming another Russia.

A READER.

PARK POLICE.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—I was surprised to read in this morning's paper that the policeman who shot down a child in Garfield park was released from custody. Not long ago another member of what the same park board calls its "police force" murdered another youth who was little more than a child.

How long is the long suffering taxpayer going to tolerate the existence of such bullies who terrorize us when we and our children try to get a little clean enjoyment out of our parks?

Our city is infested with an ever increasing number of tax-eating park boards created by greedy politicians for the principal purpose of lining their pockets and furnishing jobs. We could have more and better parks if some of the foolish laws were repealed and the city took over directly the management and creation of public parks. The entire public would be better off if practically all of the present park boards were abolished. All police should be transferred to the city's police department.

R. E. LITTLE.

SHE TANS.

Des Plaines, Ill., July 31.—I am one of those unfortunate who would like to see a snow white. It is certainly a relief and blessing not to have to go to bed each night smeared with sour milk or peroxide for fear of having "look at that coarse woman" hurled at you. A great deal of gardening and I love to swim, too. From childhood on I have waged a battle with my tanning tendencies. For I turn a ripe brown the moment a little wind or sun touches me and I know I am not the only one.

What a relief to work out in the garden and not have to worry with a broad brimmed hat or sunbust and covered arms and legs! I call this so-called sun tan crase a boon to us who have suffered so long trying to keep our faces white. Just another step towards freedom, I should say.

But maybe these people who are condemning tanned skins, freckle or, worse yet, burn, who know what they are talking about.

CHRISTINE JORDAN.

TURN ABOUT.

Chicago, July 29.—A former mayor of Charlottesville, Va., is anxious to have his name added to the long list of endearments that have been given to the city of Washington. He is a native of the District of Columbia and has lived in the city for many years.

Of course, I do not deny this former mayor the privilege to make a fool of a nuisance of himself, but I wonder what he and those others who agree with him would think if some one in Great Britain would demand that the United States embassy serve liquor at its affairs to comply with the customs of the land?

CHARLES KOEN.

JOBS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—I think an employment agency should be established for boys and girls under 17. Ordinary employment agencies will not bother with them.

The Nine Hundred Block

BY KATHARINE HAVILAND TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS.
To the nine hundred block, with its deteriorated dwellings, moved gentle, lovely Theresa Ames and her mother, Mrs. Colt, under the watchful eye of Mrs. Baum, neighborhood gossip. Theresa makes friends with Katie Warner, who lives upstairs, and B. Jones, a reporter, who, since meeting Theresa, he is engaged. He has found employment painting automobiles. Theresa does housework to help her mother, who has no other means of support. Mrs. Colt wants Theresa to marry Billy Truway, a rich bachelor son of her own girlhood.

Theresa's father, Arnold Ames, married again after Theresa's mother divorced him to marry Margaret Colt, but his wife threatened to leave him if he did. He arranges with Katie to secretly give Theresa work. For Christmas he sends her a diamond ring.

Johnny Deane, who determined not to tell Theresa of his love for her until he had made his fortune, but does not keep his word. When he confesses, Theresa feels he has deceived her and she will not forgive him. He breaks his engagement, and the girl, after writing him letters to a newspaper, Theresa returns to his father's home. Theresa and her mother will marry Billy Truway and write to her father, who calls and tells Theresa he will be married to her.

Katie too, was planning and working and she worked brutally and with intention.

"Gals' out with him tonight?" she would ask pertly of Theresa, who was not now often climbing the stairs to Katie's rooms. "Well, have a good time. The spring's a swell time for young love all right. I bet he's a hot sucker."

Theresa always edged away at such comment; seashell souls do not easily enjoy company.

Theresa realized that it was spring only through a calendar and the look of a world. She did not once feel spring. In New York Johnny thought a sodden "Hell! It's spring—!" He avoided and carefully, even a casual look at the flowers in the window, because when he saw them—the flowers in the window—he could not help thinking of what he would send to her—if he could. And that started the ache once more; the familiar ache that did not dim nor grow thin and frail as do some humors with time and wear.

On the early evening of the twenty-first day of April Elsie Colt told Theresa that she imagined she should see a doctor and Theresa studying her companion, Elsie, who said, "Mother! Theresa said unsteadily: fright and confusion killed her. How selfish she had been!"

INSTALLMENT XXX.
THE FATHERS CO-OPERATE.
Arnold Ames had had a letter from Young Deane's father. A good letter in which old Deane urged Arnold Ames' cooperation in a matter that concerned them both. "From that which my son has told me," J. Z. had dictated to Miss Wentworth, the secretary he had trusted utterly and with reason for many years. "The young people really care for one another and if the young lady can be brought to a more lenient view of that which has made great shame for my son, perhaps tragedy may be averted—"

Arnold Ames responded to this by long distance telephone and together the fathers planned moves that would set the obstinate small queen back upon the square where she belonged. They both felt very busy and important and they went around with absorbed frowns.

Katie too, was planning and working and she worked brutally and with intention.

"Gals' out with him tonight?" she would ask pertly of Theresa, who was not now often climbing the stairs to Katie's rooms. "Well, have a good time. The spring's a swell time for young love all right. I bet he's a hot sucker."

And that started the ache once more; the familiar ache that did not dim nor grow thin and frail as do some humors with time and wear.

On the early evening of the twenty-first day of April Elsie Colt told Theresa that she imagined she should see a doctor and Theresa studying her companion, Elsie, who said, "Mother! Theresa said unsteadily: fright and confusion killed her. How selfish she had been!"

"Well, I don't want another patient," said Miss Willis, bluntly.

She telephoned Dr. Dart. Arnold Ames had spoken of him for some time to Theresa and as "one of the best," and Theresa trusted her father's judgment about everything but—Johnny.

Dr. Dart had been planning to go with his boy to see a film that had in it a surprising number of Indians, but cheerfully, he said he would be "right along." And let those who criticize doctors, walk in their shoes for an hour of one day and, after this, they will not criticize a doctor; they will summon one!

As she waited Dr. Dart's arrival Theresa suggested her mother's going to bed, but Elsie did not want to go to bed. She sat, burning up with fever in a chair near the kitchen table, at which Theresa had corned bread, butter for the bread, and an occasional pot of jam. Once and again Elsie looked through the open doorway toward the bed—whereon she knew that he was going to die.

"Pet—!" [This petting] "if mother goes very ill—she would be made happy—by seeing you married to—dear—Billy—"

"Anything you want, mother? You're—(tremor in voice) all I have!"

"You will have—Billy," Elsie continued. She sat back then, because so that things were swimming around her. The typewriter with its feet on a small table, a little red elephant waved his trunk; the worn carpet writhed upon a rough board floor.

Theresa knew she would never have Billy, because Billy would never have her. One does not own anything without some sort of settlement. But she said nothing. She would marry him of course, she decided, any time her father wanted it. But—she lost color deciding this. Perhaps it will be better when it's over, she thought. She touched her mother's hand, icy cold; her mother's checks, to find them hard stretched parchment above glowing coils.

"Mother," she said, her voice breaking.

Someone came up the stairs. She opened the door to a young doctor with a heavy thatch of gray hair which suggested a particularly attractive old man.

"Miss Ames?" he said.

"Yes, my mother—!" Theresa began and had to stop. He laid his bag and hat and gloves upon the chair with the rent in the seat; slipped from his coat and moved toward Elsie Colt.

The rest was confused for Theresa. She had got the usual glass of water and a towel. The doctor had studied the thermometer without a word. He had then said he would stay until the nurse came. He thought a certain Miss Willis was not on duty. She was a very good nurse. In Mrs. Nulman's lower hall he telephoned for Miss Willis, who was, as he had thought, on duty. He then telephoned his wife to tell her he could not be in for some time to suggest that she go with the boy to the film so satisfactorily repeat with Redekind. He didn't want the boy disappointed.

Elsie, wrapped in a blanket was upon the bed. Miss Willis was to get her out of her room and into the bed. Dr. Dart had said gently that Miss Willis could do this with less disturbance than could Theresa. He knew how Theresa would feel.

Instead, anxiety made Elsie's.

Elsie, upon the bed, began to talk to Arnold Ames and then to Barrington Colt. Brain paths were deep by long years of resentment, made her fretful. Theresa stood by the bed, hand pressed against trembling lips. She remembered all the little sharpnesses she had flung her mother because circumstances had turned her feet into a pasture that was barren for her; she remembered her grudging silences, and nothing of her patience with years of her mother's fretting and sometimes ardent nagging. No echo of her stoic endurance and mature gentleness warmed the moment for her; she felt only those things she should not have done. And real character is truly told by eyes that turn inward to see lacks and outward to see virtues.

Miss Willis came, faded, yet sharpened, by experience, wearing stuffy patterned white which rustled loudly as she moved. An intimate acquaintance with Redekind's leads sundry things to have it to regard people as "cases." This "case" was pneumonia, well advanced and hopeless. Miss Willis realized that she was going to lose another case. You lost them in series, and despite all your reasoning and common sense, it sometimes "got" you. And it was really terrible if you were with your parents long enough to grow old and then, she'd just come out of the case. Three small children and a man, who was on thinking she was going to get well, sitting by his wife's bedside; he would talk of his wife's getting well; of what they'd do when she got well. That, for some reason, "had just abut done up" Miss Willis. Mrs. Carter hadn't had a chance. Up to the last—the very last—she'd said, "If you please," and "Thank you." God central did sometimes ball things up. "If you please," or "Thank you—"

Now she was saying (the pneumonia case) "Mother asks you, Theresa, what do you know about—this—yours—Mr. Deane—"

Nagging, Miss Willis decided. "Have you had anything to eat?" she questioned Theresa.

"I'm not—hungry," Theresa answered, staring tragically down at her mother, who was again championing Billy Truway and disparaging "That young Mr. Deane." [A sneer was in the "Mr."]

"Well, I don't want another patient," said Miss Willis bluntly, she added, "Isn't there some one in this place who will give you a decent dinner?"

She knew that Theresa was incapable of doing anything but burning food.

"Have you had your dinner?" Theresa questioned, coming back, with a look away, to responsibility.

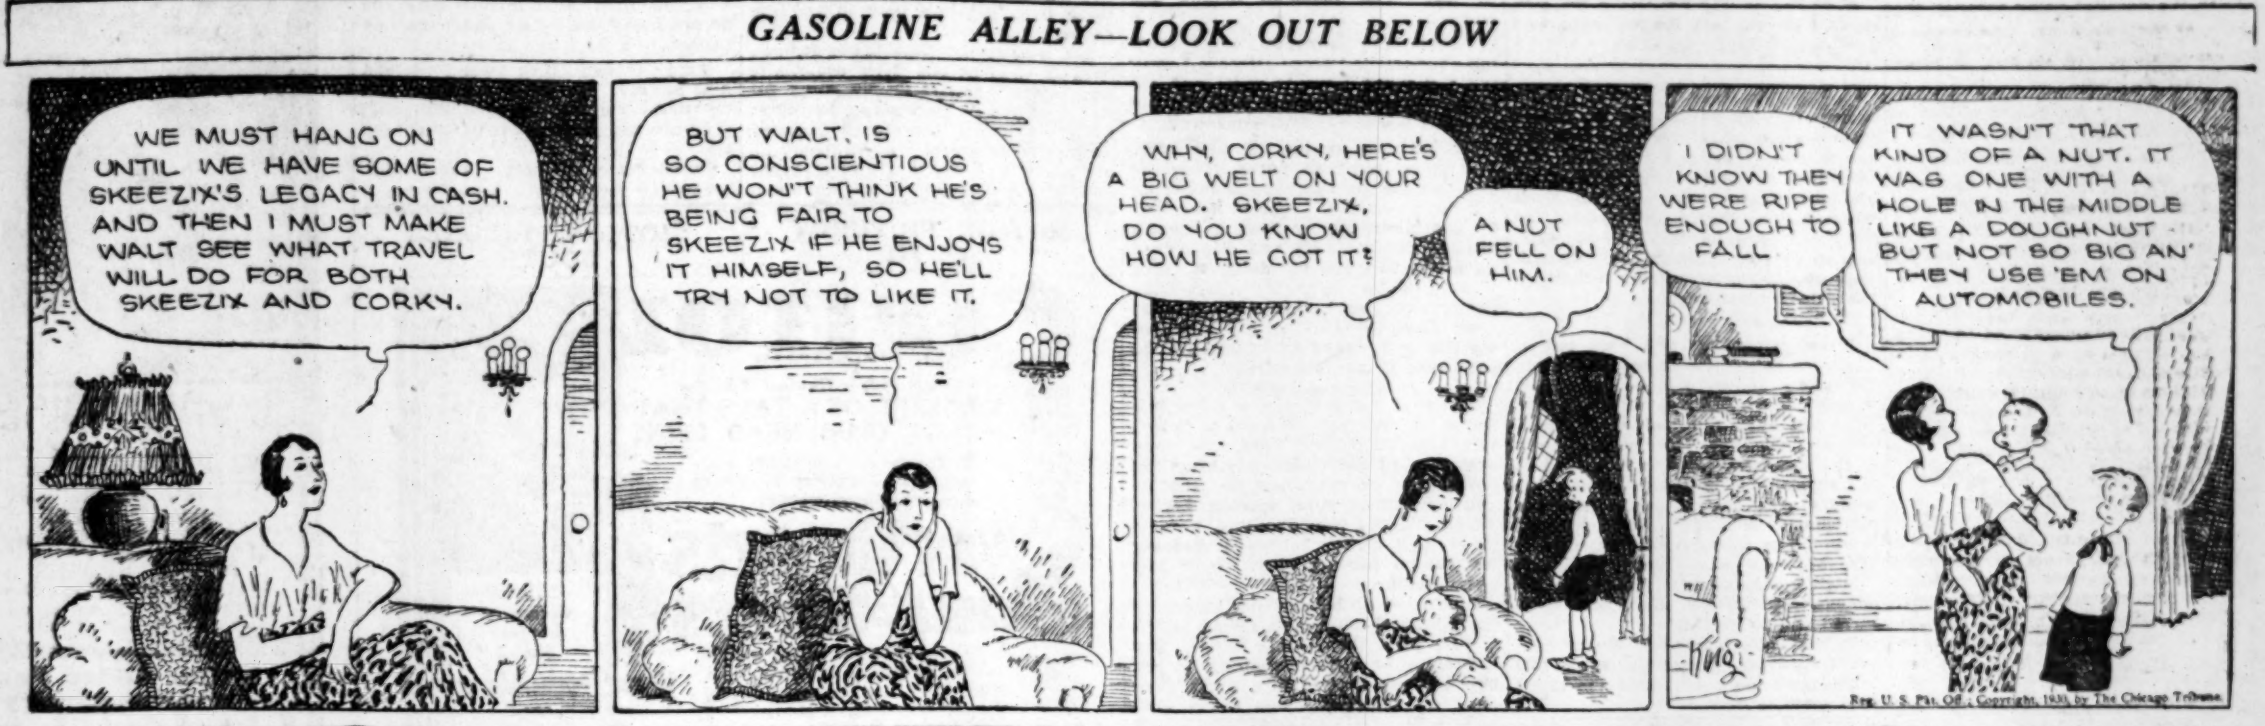

"Yes, and you needn't worry about me; I'll pick up what I want as I go along. If I may attend to the patient alone, now, please?"

"I'm going up above," Theresa said, a moment later and from the living room. "If you want me, I'll be there—"

Another moment later and from half way up the third floor Theresa heard Dr. Dart's and Miss Willis' blended murmur at the door. Dr. Dart said he would look in again at about nine. Then he went down the stairs.

Good Morning!
"Manslaughter" isn't a great story, but it is a good story that's been greatly screened!

This picture is genuinely and consistently convincing throughout. There's not a moment when the action disappoints; not a character who leaves you cold; not a spoken word that's superfluous or fails to ring true; not a situation not a scene a thing to give you that awful, fishy, aw-taint-y feeling. The photography is splendid and the sound perfect. Now what more shall I say? This, perhaps:

Alice Duer Miller wrote the story—it was produced before as a "silent"—which is about a spoiled rich girl who believes in special privileges for the "upper classes." It kills a man through recklessness, and, in jail, learns some things she's badly needed to know. Miss Colbert as Lidia Thorne is magnificent—and you'll love her voice. Frederic March as the district attorney who loves—and puts her behind the bars, is another winner. But I've told you how good the cast is—so why repeat?

"Manslaughter" has romance, punch, suspense, and, though behind all of this, Be nice to yourselves and go see the piece.

This one should please the proletariat, for it goes to show that the wealthy have their troubles too, the main one being that they ain't got no fun.

"Holiday" is the sumptuously staged and expertly presented Altalk screen version of the stage play of the same name. The title has reference to the desire of a rich girl's stock clerk fiancé to retire and play for a time while his young thorough to enjoy playing, coming back to work later on when he's a more sedate dog and not so fond of doing tricks. His girl, Julia, and her multi-millionaire dad are dead set against the notion. Julia's beautiful, unhappy sister and her loveable, aimless brother are for it.

It is young Mr. Case's idea that he and his bride set out for this playing immediately after the wedding. Do they? Is there a wedding? If not, why not, and can you answer this question without thinking: Why do young stock clerks with ideas of their own sometimes prefer blondes to brunettes?

Things turn out as, I'm sure, you've been hoping all along that they would. The acting in this picture is all good, according special mention to Edward Everett Horton who has the sort of comedy role he always should have and seldom gets, Monroe Owsley as Ned Selton, Mary Astor as the hard-hearted conventional sister and William Holden as the money-worshipping son. Ann Harding is very, very beautiful and does some magnificent work in spots. At other times her performance seems somewhat strained and several of her remarks fall strangely from those gentle lips. It is not such as she who say "My Buckle" for instance. She has, apparently, for some unaccountable reason, endeavored to instill a note of strident boyishness into her character.

LONDON MOVIE SHOWS SETTING RECORD FOR BOX OFFICE RECEIPTS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Aug. 8.—The London movie box office takings are soaring to the greatest figures ever known. It is estimated that the Londoners will spend $1,000,000 this week in the film palaces, many of the big houses being sold out 12 hours daily.

Amusement expenditures by the public are supplying the chancellor of the exchequer with $200,000 taxes weekly, and the seven day to the American producers is $250,000. The increase is despite the fact that early in August is generally the poorest business period of the year, and the figures are now exceeding even those of the first talkie boom.

Long lines every night stretch for blocks with crowds waiting for seats. The attendance is accredited partly to the shutdown of the legitimate theater and the unusual windfall of popular films.

terization, and it does not become this fair, poised woman with the praying eyes. Just the same, she's a lovely thing and gives an intelligent performance.

The picture has enough action and suspense to please the average movie fan. Its points are smoothly and convincingly throughout. As a peep at the idle rich who, it seems, just wouldn't be idle for anything, "Holiday" serves well.

See you tomorrow.

Swiss Riders Awarded Aga Khan Cup at Dublin Horse Show

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 8.—More than 30,000 attended the royal Dublin horse show which concluded this afternoon with the big attraction of the week, the international military jumping competition for the Aga Khan cup. That contest was extremely keen and there was great excitement as the national anthem of each country represented was played as its team entered the field.

The competing nations were Belgium, France, England, Italy, Switzerland, and Ireland.

Switzerland won, Italy was second, England was third, and Ireland fourth. The special prize for the best individual round of the course was won by Lieut. Du Bruell of France on his horse, Popol.

Among the distinguished visitors were Gov. Gen. James MacNeill, who presented the prizes; President William Cosgrave, Lord Thomson, British secretary, and American Minister Frederick Sterling.

Live Business City, Zapouna, But It's Gone

Baked Oven Dictionary; The World's First?

(Copyright, 1930, By the New York Times.)
PARIS, Aug. 8.—What seems to be the latest dictionary in the world has been discovered in southern Syria by the French archaeological expedition under Dr. P. A. Schaeffer of Strasbourg. Today he read before the Academie des Inscriptions et Belles Lettres here an account of his discoveries.

Just a year ago Dr. Schaeffer reported the discovery near Latakia of a coast town which between 2000 B. C. and 3000 B. C. was doing a prosperous trade in copper from the mines at Cyprus and in Asiatic products, which were shipped to Egypt, pre-Hellenic Greece and throughout the countries of the eastern Mediterranean. It was a city of merchants of apparently great prosperity and its name was Zapouna.

Last year's searches showed it had been ruled at the height of its greatness by a princely family. This year's researches were directed to exploring the palace of those princes and especially the library. There baked earth tablets have been found which showed an unknown script and language going back at least fourteen centuries before the Christian era. This language was written in alphabetical signs. The researches this spring confirmed last year's discoveries.

The library was found to have been a large building with numerous rooms and corridors, and it was there that these primitive Noah Webster's lived and worked. There seems, according to the discoveries, to have been a school of scribes who had their headquarters at the palace.

Their task was not an easy one, for at Zapouna, with its farthing commerce, it was necessary to know and to be able to translate and write in six languages. Traces of work in all the six tongues have been found.

For diplomatic purposes with the neighboring states, Dr. Schaeffer said, Babylonian was used. That seems to have been adopted even by the foreign ministers of the Egyptian Pharaohs. Proof of this was found in a copy of a kind of Versailles treaty of its time in the rectification of the frontiers of three important towns of ancient Phoenicia was mentioned.

In Zapouna itself and the surrounding country a Semitic dialect was spoken and written in the astonishing script which the expedition discovered.

"BARTERED BRIDE," FORGOT 20 YEARS, WINS AT RAVINIA

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It has been twenty years since "The Bartered Bride" was given professionally hereabouts, and listening to its revival at Ravinia last night one decides that for twenty years the opera-going public has been deprived of one of the most diverting and most entrancing pieces in the whole operatic repertoire.

It seems to have been the greatest success of the season. Enthusiasm began when Louis Hasselmann conducted the overture, a selection made familiar through Mr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and this time greeted with applause that did not stop until the orchestra had risen to its collective feet.

This was the start, and the same state of mind continued. The reasons were apparently three—a whole succession of first class melodies, an equal succession of first class comedy, and a superlative cast. Here were Elizabeth Hetherington and Mario Chamlee in the comparatively straight parts of the lovers, two singers to grow rhapsodical over; here was also Louis D'Angelo, a jewel of a comic as the marriage broker, dispensing worldly wisdom and consuming beer, though perhaps near-by, in vast quantities throughout the piece.

These were four of an all-star cast. Add to them Ruth Page and Blake Scott, who with the ballet flashed through their dances in a way that stopped the show just certainly as the magnetic singing of Mme. Hetherington and Mario Chamlee. Add further that even so small a part as the mother as done by Ina Bourskaya was given a real and memorable impersonation, that the scenery was fully as good as the best ever seen in Ravinia, and that all the participants, principals, chorus, orchestra, were up to the mark in the effort to give a speedy, colorful, and lively performance, and that they succeeded.

See "The Bartered Bride" the next time it is given. You will find it time well spent.

The scholars and priests, on the other hand, preferred to speak Sumerian, a very ancient and rather clumsy language of Mesopotamian origin which was a kind of scholar's Latin of its epoch.

The fourth language used at Zapouna was Egyptian, which was spoken by the official classes during the period of domination by the Pharaohs. This language was written in alphabetical signs. The researches this spring confirmed last year's discoveries.

In Zapouna itself and the surrounding country a Semitic dialect was spoken and written in the astonishing script which the expedition discovered.

Lake County Music Contestants Named for Chicagoland Festival

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Before an enthusiastic crowd in the high school auditorium the fifty place band of Zion, Ill., won the right to represent Lake county in this Tri-State's Chicagoland music festival. Conducted by P. B. Newcomer, the Zion band had a decided margin over the other competitors.

The North Shore Line band, conducted by Earl Schmitt, won second place. The Libertyville Municipal band, conducted by Percy Shaw, came third.

Judges were C. Guy Hoover and Harold Bachman of Chicago and Otto E. Graham of Waukegan.

Tonight's band concert was the climax of three days of music sponsored by the Waukegan News-Sun.

Instrumental and vocal contests were held on the other two days. The winners who will represent Lake county in the Chicago competition are:

INSTRUMENTAL.—Regional Carey, Zion, trombone; John McElroy, Waukegan, saxophone; Reino Lindroos, Waukegan, cornet.

VOCAL.—Earl Shuttles, Waukegan, bass; Ruth Tibbets, Lake Forest, tenor; Oliver Melum, Lake Bluff, alto; Nancy Reilly, Waukegan, alto; Jenny Gohn, Waukegan, soprano.

The Swedish Glee club of Waukegan will send a chorus of 25 male voices.

In the women's quartet the group will be the Aeolian quartet, consisting of Olga Johnson, Foster, Selma Swanberg, Mildred S. Malcolm, Agnes J. Warner, with Ellen Johnson, accompanist.

The mixed quartet consists of Theresa Brown, Madge Elbert, Oliver Melum, and Merle Tibbets.

The male quartet is made up of the McElroy brothers, John, David, Robert, and Richard. This group of brothers, plus the soprano, George, will also compete in the saxophone ensemble events.

Lambeth Conference Ends This Week; Reports Later

LONDON, Aug. 8.—[The] Lambeth conference of bishops of the Anglican communion from all over the world will close this week. The sessions have been held behind closed doors until the archbishop of Canterbury presiding. A report of the deliberations is expected to be published within a few weeks.

The Daily Herald today says the bishops have decided not to condemn unconditionally in their report the practice of birth control, refusing to go further than to suggest it has no part in "the perfect Christian married life."

The decision, the Herald adds, is considered a great victory for Lord Dawson of Penn, King George's physician, who has been striving to prevent any outstanding condemnation of the principle.

W. T. Wardwell of Chicago Heads Universal Craftsman

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 8.—[The] William T. Wardwell of Chicago today was elected grand master of the new council, Universal Craftsman Council of Engineers. Other officers include: grand assistant chief, Andrew C. Elder of Los Angeles, grand warden, Charles F. Keubler of Washington, D. C., and grand chaplain, Milton Meekins of Baltimore.

Mrs. Morrow and Party Leave for Mexico City

Englewood, N. J., Aug. 8.—[The] Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, her daughter, Constance, and a party of friends will leave for Mexico City next week to join the ambassador.

They are expected to remain in Mexico until the return of Mr. Morrow in the fall to begin his campaign for election to the United States senate.

Russian Preacher Declares Christianity Survives There

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—[The] Pastor Prohmann, leader of the Evangelicals of Russia, today told a gathering of 10,000 Christian Endeavor delegates in convention here that "the Christian religion is in no wise dead in soviet Russia—in spite of persecution, oppression and martyrdom."

Storms at Sea Balk Lindbergh Talk to World

Though American Broadcast Proves Successful.

Test Anne's Plane

Roosevelt Field, L. I., Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Unrecorded a d. assembled at this field the Bird biplane purchased for Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was flown in a test by the famous pilot, head of the manufacturing concern. It is to be delivered to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh tomorrow when they will fly it to the Morrow estate at North Haven, Me. It is understood that they will not take their two month old son, Charles Augustus Jr., with them.

New York, Aug. 8.—[Special.]—Storms at sea which could not keep Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from accomplishing his famous flight across the ocean, today prevented his voice from making a trans-Atlantic journey through the air. Just as he was ready to send his words on a longer voyage than he or any other man has ever made in a plane, a terrific electrical storm broke over the Atlantic, and the most ambitious arrangements ever made for a world broadcast all went for naught. It was his first formal radio address, and it was to have been heard in the far corners of the world—Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia.

Luckily, Col. Lindbergh knew nothing of the sudden opposition of the atmosphere, and so was not aware until it was all over that his words had not reached their goal.

"Are you nervous?" some one asked in the little chilled room at the studios of the Columbia Broadcasting system, just before the flying colossus began to bank.

"Why should I be nervous about going on the air?" asked the man to whom the air is home.

And then he proceeded to read his prepared address, unimpaired by all his vast and waiting audience was deflected by the storm, his considered message to the world about what he thought of aviation, its function, and its future.

Fortunately two separate broadcasts of the Lindbergh speech had been arranged. The first, the one storm destroyed, was a short wave broadcast intended purely for other lands. That was at 1:30 p. m. eastern standard time, the other, at 10 o'clock was for domestic listeners, and also was carried by short wave. So if disappointed listeners until the small hours of the morning they could get another chance to hear.

In his address, which took just eight minutes to deliver, Col. Lindbergh spoke of close alliance between developments of transportation and the general improvement of civilization.

"If we accept the principle," he said, "the life today is preferable to that of ancient times, then it is logical to assume that any future improvement in transportation will result in a corresponding advance in the standard of living."

He spoke of the great continental air systems of today and predicted that within a few years trans-oceanic lines would link these into world-wide network. And in closing he urged the necessity of internationally uniform air regulations, so that the intercontinental flyers of the future should not be impeded by national restrictions.

Col. Lindbergh seemed perfectly calm while he was talking before the twin microphones.

Defends Chicago's Public Library from Recent Critics

The Chicago public library is expanding its services constantly, Carl B. Roden, librarian, said yesterday in answer to criticisms of the local system contained in a report prepared for the Carnegie corporation. The results of a national survey, just published under the title "Books," stated that the Chicago library, like that in New York, has been more concerned with keeping up with incidents, demands upon its services than in creating new demands.

Mr. Roden denied that only 20 percent of the books in the main library and its branches are reference books, as stated in the report. He asserted that the Chicago library has as large a stock of reference books as any public library in the country.

The report commended the library's advisory service for readers and said that it is striving for quality rather than quantity.

Doris Urges Wife to Turn Deaf Ear to Tale Bearer

By DORIS BLAKE.

"Last night I was told that my husband had 'stepped out' while I was in the hospital going through the ordeal of having a baby. The one who told me had it told to her. I know this other girl well.

"My husband swears he did not start out with girls, only with men, and the girl company was not of his asking. Shall I let it go at that and accept his statement, or shall I confront the girl with what I have heard? If true, I think it would be too contemptible, and I think I never could forgive my husband.

I was accused recently of favoring men in my judgment on questions in which they were concerned. In fact, a whole bridge group threatened to withdraw their reading support unless my advice underwent a radical change, favoring the "downtrodden women" (from a bridge group, remember) instead of the male.

But some one must come to man's rescue when women get to conjuring up suspicions against them. What experts women are at that game! Out of a harmless telephone number they can build a whole mess of trouble reaching from the day of its discovery to the end of their marriage. Granted it would be contemptible for

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Difference in Ages

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I love is five years younger than I and I think he's too young for me. What'll I do?" "BROKEN HEARTED."

If he thinks he's too young for you, he is. I'd suggest finding some one at least your own age.

A man to step out during his wife's incarceration in the hospital awaiting the arrival of his and her child, still he might, through pure restlessness and worry, get into a group from which a false charge could arise. He might, because he didn't know what else to do with himself, get in touch with an old buddy and be precipitated innocently into a party.

If he's smart he will keep out of any such situation. If he has feelings, his wife's welfare will be uppermost in his mind at this critical time, and that will keep him out of mischief, real or imaginary. But when a story of the sort is revealed in which a tale bearer plays so prominent a part, we wonder why justice can't mete out punishment befitting? Any tale bearer should be ostracized by decent people, but one who carries a story, though it may be true, under the circumstances outlined above, should be tarred and feathered.

To the wife we say, "Forget you ever heard the charge and avoid like the plague the contemptible creature who acted as carrier."

A Wise Parent Does Not Overemphasize Even a Serious Fault

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Every once in so often letters of distress about like the following come to me. The personal details are omitted:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: After reading your article 'Teens Deserve Loyalty' I thought I would write and explain my sorrow to you and I know you will comfort me in some way.

"I am the mother of five boys. The oldest boy has never given me any trouble to amount to anything but the other day I had to hear that he has taken money from a friend's kitchen drawer. My son has owned up and apologized for doing it. But I am telling you, my dear Mrs. Bevans, my heart could not have had more of a shock if he got killed or something. I want my children to be honorable if nothing else.

"Now, I have told him a terrible thing. I was so worked up that I told him I'd rather bury him than ever hear of him doing anything like that again. I must tell you this so you can form your opinion better. When I asked him about it, he said he wanted money to buy something for me on my birthday. Isn't this heartbreaking?

This act of his became known to the family through this friend and it is just what they would like to say something or have something on my boy because they really think they have the only good and smart child.

something that doesn't belong to him. We don't call him a thief for it, because he is not one. He is a child whose character is not yet entirely formed. It is not a criminal or immoral instinct that is at work in him.

You were very wrong to say what you did about seeing him dead, and you must tell him now that you do not mean that—that you were just excited.

Stand by your boy. Trust him. Forgive and forget—and defend him against the other relatives you mention. You may be sure their children are not perfect, even if they say so.

Simple Fare Will Help You to Lose
Those Extra Pounds

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
One way to reduce is to send your cook off to the country with the children and do your own cooking for a while. Of course, you could let the treasure go back to the old country for a visit, if you haven't any children to send to the country. But what living on a simple, simple fare can do to an overstuffed figure was revealed the other evening in the report of an eight pound loss in a little over three weeks, due to the regular cook's absence.

Marble Cake

3 cups pastry flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
1/2 cup butter.
1 cup sugar.
4 eggs.
1 cup milk.
1/2 cup cocoa [or squares] chocolate, melted
and cooled.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
1 teaspoon cloves.
1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Assembly
Over a hot fire at 350 degrees Fahrenheit, heat the oil in a pan or line with paraffin paper. Sift the flour and measure the sugar and baking powder. Cream the butter until it is plastic and a light lemon color. Add sugar in several portions, creaming well after each addition. Add the eggs one at a time, beating the mixture well after each egg is added. Add the flour mixed with the baking powder and the milk alternately, beginning and ending with flour.

ter every other day, to keep it in good condition.

Meat stock is still a good practice, and one is not to be discouraged. You may say, "I will never be able to enjoy the foods requiring stock. I have no time to keep the soup pot simmering." Well, there are bouillon cubes for you.

Bouillon cubes may be purchased at any grocery or drug store. They come in bulk or in small, tightly covered tin boxes. Beef bouillon cubes are most common, but chicken are available at some stores.

These cubes will take the place of stock in all foods requiring stock. Onions, cubes dissolved in cooking cup of water, and a dash of bouillon of medium salt strength and good flavor. If a bouillon is desired it can be served as is, or it can be used to prepare jellied

Tie-On Clothes Win

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.
PARIS.—[Special.]—The smartest
Paris frocks are tied on somewhere

With the new fitted lines some sort of fastenings became essential and hooks and eyes are apt to show and snap fasteners to unsnap. The logical solution, then, was the draped and tied on frock which is, so to speak, self-adjustable, for if the wearer gains or loses a few ounces, it can be pulled

Practically all the Paris couturiers offer some version of the tied-on idea that is typical of the apparent carelessness which has become the ideal of chic. Schiaparelli first used it in her apron dresses that unfold flat, so they're easy to press, and when they're draped around and tied front and back—wherever the lines of the dress indicate—look most sophisticated and complicated.

Madeleine won the blessings of all the "stylish stouts" by her separate tie-on tunics, positively fool proof, that could be placed wherever the waistline was most becoming. Louise-boulanger features tie-on over dresses, tunics and fischus that can vary the effect of the underdress and do much to help out slightly overweight or underweight figures.

Patou has an apron skirt that opens out flat. Chantel, Madeleine and others show laced up belts, hip yokes and even blouse yokes that can be let out or taken in an inch or two without spoiling the silhouette.

Sketched today are three tie-ons that have found favor with smart Parisiennes. At the left is a tie-on coat dress, draped at the waist by shirrings, front and back. The tunic

'Outlaw Years' Tells Story of Land PiratesAlso Gangsters' Plot for Slaves' Rebellion.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Outlaw Years," by Robert M. Coates. [Macaulay.]

Although many writers nowadays give the impression that "The Outlaw Years" would be a perfect title for a history of current affairs in our fair country, Mr. Coates is not concerned with the manifestations of present day bootlegging, gang warfare, robbery, and murder which flourish with green bay tree luxury these days.

R. M. COATES.

The outlaw years that he records are those of a hundred years and more ago. Then the principal way from the eastern coast to the thriving towns of the Mississippi-Natchez and New Orleans—was over what was called the Natchez Trace, a wilderness of land and water which nurtured not only hostile Indians, hungry alligators, and grinding eddies but which was the breeding place of land piracy, one of the most virulent forms of robbery, murder, and torture.

Mr. Coates makes no comparisons between those days and these in his interesting volume, but if the murder of a handful of men in a garage seems like wholesale murder to you read the stories of whole fathoms of men, women, and children that were cold-bloodedly set upon and murdered, innocent victims whose only crime was the possession of money or provisions which bands of river pirates needed.

If you are a stranger to Chicago and tremble to walk down her highly advertised streets lest a stray bullet from a slightly gay gangster's gun penetrate your vitals, read of the casual way in which one of the Harpers would whip out a revolver when he came upon some one who looked mildly prosperous and plant a bullet between his eyes.

It is a rare holdup man today who would put you through the inconveniences that the Harpers did their victims before they shot them. They made them take off the top of their clothes and stand up naked to be shot dead. Why? So that, once the bullet had whanged to its goal, the body could be disemboweled and filled with sand or stones, sunk to the bottom of a pool or river, and thus leave no trace to point to the murderer's identity. In those days a man who was robbed and let go was looked on as a mistake by the bandit craft. He was a constant menace to the life of the master, one not only dead but disposed of, could tell no tales. They were a pretty crotchety gang of the early nineteenth century.

'ONCE IN MY GARDEN' IS LATEST OPUS OF
MR. H. M. TOMLINSON

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. [Special Correspondence.]—H. M. Tomlinson is showing himself a true

Englishman. H. has taken to gardening. His conversation is full of rockeries, herbaceous borders, bulbs, budding, and rich loam. And he has an ambition. This ambition is nothing more nor less than the will to grow blue gentians, which he regards as the finest flowers in the world.

H. M. TOMLINSON.

I have told Mr. Tomlinson how to grow gentians. I have told him to strew the seeds gently upon the stony paths of his garden, and insist them with offensive words. They will grow in such circumstances, but in no others.

Mr. Tomlinson pays no heed to my warnings. He proposes to visit me. "And," says he, "I swear I'll come with gentians in my buttonholes—even if I have to buy the plants on my way!" This will show how deep the true gardener's ambition has gone with him. I hope that he shall not have to wait for a new book from Mr. Tomlinson until he has grown gentians to his liking. What the world needs nowadays is not so much rockeries as masterpieces!

Speaking about rockeries reminds me that the best rockery I have ever seen is that in John Galsworthy's Sussex garden. It is not the usual little heap of stones containing aubretia and saxifrage, but is a large affair with beautifully contrasted pockets of every hue.

Something rather odd has just happened in London. A book published a year ago has just been "discovered" as a neglected masterpiece. The book is—rather unattractively—entitled "Living." It is a book, who wrote another book called "Blindness," has adopted the not especially striking pseudonym of "Henry Green." And the discoverer is Mr. Evelyn Waugh, who has written an article proclaiming that Mr. Green does for the novel what Mr. T. S. Eliot is doing for poetry.

I am sure, too, that something of the same kind will happen in America to Mr. William Faulkner, whose "Solitude's Pay" is recently published in this country. Although I believe it was published in the United States some time ago, Mr. Faulkner, unless I am much mistaken, is destined to attain great fame in England as the author of "Soldier's Pay" and "The Sound and the Fury."

overthrow of the decencies. That one lone young man brought the head of the organization to justice, but so fickle is public opinion and so powerful were the webbing of the plot that the country refused to believe the young man's stories of a vast rebellion. The rebellion went on, despite the leader's imprisonment on the charge of slave stealing. It was only again averted by the merest chance of fate.

Then, as now, the better elements of the settlements were inclined to let the ruffian go what they pleased among themselves. They woke up almost to find themselves entirely in the hands of the gangsters. Once the decent people realized what was happening and was about to happen there arose such a passion for hangings as the country never had known before. Trees, road posts, it mattered not what, served as gibbets.

Mr. Coates handles all of his explosive material with the utmost calmness and poise. "The Outlaw Years" is that fact which is so much more thrilling than any fancy. It is the August choice of the Literary Guild.

Shining Heroes,
Black Villains
Sell His BooksSo Mr. Wright's Score Nears 10 Millions.

HAROLD B. WRIGHT

"Exile," by Harold Bell Wright [Appleton], brings to an audience of approximately 737,443 readers passionately awaiting it, Harold Bell Wright's latest novel. That figure is not a wild guess, but one which auditors have attested. Of the twelve novels which have preceded "Exile," the publishers give proof that they have sold approximately 737,443 copies of each. Of them all some figure like 9,849,316 represents the copies sold. If any other living author in America can offer statistics to prove that he has sold almost ten million copies of twelve books let him step up and yank out the brow of Mr. Wright the wreath in which is spelled with immortality "The best selling author in the United States."

The most popular author in the country has his following outside the cities. It is not New York and Chicago and Boston that buy at most 750,000 copies of every Harold Bell Wright book. It is the five and ten copies that are sold in literally thousands of hamlets that have piled up that sale. Harold Bell Wright is a figure prove it—the ideal writer of the American reading public.

Of the "American reading public," in the sense of those few in every community who have a definite and passionate interest in the printed page and in the art of creative and critical writing, Mr. Wright can scarcely be said to be the favorite. The critical minority and his novels are bought as both as to plot and as to similitude to life. The less critical majority find his plots perfect.

What the critics would feel was a very, very long arm of coincidence in Mr. Wright's novels, they would call fate. Their own experience and the lives of their friends would be cited as examples of how mysterious and coincidental fate often is. Critics of life as well as of literature have been coming more and more to think that while theoretically black is perhaps a presence of all colors, white in absence of all colors is no absolute black and no absolute white. Life is mostly painted in shades of gray, they say. Mr. Wright never has compromised with the black and white and white theory. To him the presence of vice makes the whole man a villain.

The pure (whether woman or man) is unsullied by the presence of any moral color. Therein perhaps lies the tremendous popularity of Mr. Wright. He has reduced life to the fundamental principle that despite all evidences to the contrary in the outward manifestations of life, virtue always triumphs, fate rewards the righteous, and wickedness is punished. America as a nation apparently craves that doctrine, for it certainly eats up his books.

"Exile" has as its theme song, "All the World's a Stage," and Mr. Wright works out his idea by an introduction of a melodramatic play which fills half of the book. F. B.

SCIENCE STORIES WELL TOLD IN CHILDREN'S BOOK "FINGERFINS"

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

[Director of children's work for branches Chicago public library.]

"Fingerfins," by Wilfrid S. Bronson [Macmillan].
"Lucian Goes A-Voyaging," by Agnes Carr Vaughn [Knopf].
"Boycoys," by Arthur E. Hamilton [John Day].

Wilfrid S. Bronson's "Fingerfins"—A Tale of a Sargasso Sea—is a rare combination of fact, imagination, and good humor which is decidedly worthy of attention. It is the story of one of the strangest of the little creatures that live in the floating weeds of the Gulf stream and the Sargasso sea, a small fish with hands so like our own that the artist named it "Fingerfins."

Very interesting, indeed, is this life story of "Fingerfins," who carries his own fishing rod fastened to his forehead, and with eyes that never close is always on the watch for food and enemies.

The author was one of the staff artists on a scientific expedition, and he has told the story in pictures as well as text. Mr. Bronson is an artist, but he must also be a student and lover of children, for he has made both text and pictures so infinitely appealing to them, and seems to possess the happy faculty of combining humor with fact. It is, throughout, an unusually delightful book which should not be overlooked by those who complain that their children will read nothing but fiction. Any child of nine or older will read this book and enjoy it.

Another book which boys and girls will like is "Gulliver's Travels" and Baron Munchausen's stories should not miss Agnes Carr Vaughn's "Lucian Goes A-Voyaging." This is an adaptation of an old Greek tale written some two thousand years ago. The amazing adventures of Lucian will call forth many laughs, and children who like frankly imaginative stories will like it.

A book of interest to camp directors or any who work with groups of boys is Arthur E. Hamilton's "Boycoys." The author is an authority on the psychology of boyhood, and writes from many years of experience with boys in camps. The book is marked with sympathetic understanding of the boy problem from many points of view of value to the parent as well as to workers with children.

Some Clues About Book Selling and Problem of Morals

On Aug. 1 the 75 cent reprint of "All Quiet on the Western Front" was issued by Grosset & Dunlap, which isn't startling news, because all popular novels sooner or later get into the reprints, but it is startling news that their edition will be printed from the English and not the American text.

When the book was published in the United States last year one chapter was omitted, and the public thought that the chapter—which appears in all of the European editions in all languages—was something very exciting, so they bought the book from Canada.

The reason the English edition was not allowed to be sold legally in the United States was not because it was refused entrance into the country on grounds of obscenity, but because when an American publisher publishes a book here any other edition is contraband through the copyright laws.

The case of Wells' "Outline of History" was a famous one. Once it was published in this country it was illegal to import it, either in the original parts or in the bound volumes. There certainly was no question of morals in that case.

About LincolnMrs. Honore W. Morrow's Novels Are Explained.

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

NEW YORK. [Special Correspondence.]—With "The Last Full Measure" Honore W. Morrow

completes her Lincoln trilogy. The very nature of her material makes this final novel more dramatic than "Forever Free" or "Toward Noon," for it deals with the last two weeks of Lincoln's life, contrasting the gay peace celebrations of Washington society with the dark secrecy of the White House.

Morrow's gift of giving vividness to figures and scenes from the past we discovered by determined questioning last Tuesday is rooted in the thoroughness of her research. "Giff?" She shook her head and sublimely "persistence," telling of her pursuit through volume after volume for details she never used. She drew an architect's plan of the White House, designating the furnishings of each room, showing us that the novelists who picture an authentic scene must first have persistence to draw the full circle.

A tall, graceful woman is Mrs. Morrow, with the black, black hair, and widest blue eyes of some Irish ancestor, though she is American enough, goodness knows. Like all other authors of accomplishment we have met, Mrs. Morrow scoffs at the word "inspiration," shuts herself away from temptation to play with the children for her allotted working hours six days a week. "But you can call them writers' gamblers," she declares, "for they know full well that what they write never will please themselves and mayhap nobody else, but once their minds are set on a tale they recklessly gamble away months and years."

Henry L. Mencken is being teased by the New York dailies about his engagement to Sarah Bowell Haardt of Baltimore, whom he will marry Sept. 3. All Mr. Mencken's pronouncements on the joys of bachelorhood are being hurled at him in quotation marks. Miss Haardt is a well known magazine writer; her first novel, "The Making of a Lady," will be published this fall. Week-end house parties in this vicinity, usually devoted to the most frivolous literature, if any, have gone haywire over Leo Markun's "Mrs. Grundy," because this brilliant and erudite history of four centuries of morals has been discovered to contain on every page some spark for starting frivolous conversations appropriate to all occasions.

Meetings and Lectures

On Tuesday afternoon Prof. Charles Read Bakervill will lecture on "Shakespeare's Political Ideals" on Wednesday Prof. Walter Starke, Dublin university, will discuss "Writers of Modern Ireland," and on Friday afternoon Prof. Douglas Waples will talk on "What People Like to Read About." These three lectures will be held at 430 p. m. in the Harper assembly room of the University of Chicago.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

BY THE LITERARY EDITOR.

FICTION.

Tatter'd Loving by Phyllis Bottomo (Houghton Mifflin) is the story of a woman who lived for love—receiving it, not giving it.
Beau Lover by Carman Barnes (Liveright) is the story of girls just out of school and their beau lovers, written by an old woman of seventeen.
White Jade by Maude Mosher (Houghton Mifflin) is the romantic story of a Chinese Helen of Troy of the "Tang" period, who quenched her age in a sea of blood.

Exile, by Harold Bell Wright (Appleton), is the story of a great love by perhaps the best selling author in the United States.

This Day and Time, by Anne W. Armstrong (Knopf), is the story of a valiant and noble woman in the Blue Ridge mountains.
Strangers May Kiss, by Ursula Parrott (Cape Smith), is an intense, human tale of love and marriage to the wrong man by the author of "Ex Wife."

MYSTERY.

The Actress by Arthur Applin (Duffield) is a murder mystery tale of the stage.
The Secret of the Bungalow, by Robert J. Casey (Bobbs-Merrill), has the same demon Jim Sands, ex-newspaper reporter, as the snooper who solved the "Secret of 37 Hardy Street."

Derelet, by Joseph T. Shaw (Knopf), is a mystery adventure that takes place on a sinking ocean liner.
If You Know What I Mean by Joseph Easton McDougall (Dutton) is a volume of gay and light verse.

POETRY.

Modern American Poetry (Harcourt Brace) is a "Critical Anthology" edited by Louis Untermeyer.

The Cheerful Chub by Rebecca McCann (Covici Friede) is the second series of those amusing quips.

If You Know What I Mean by Joseph Easton McDougall (Dutton) is a volume of gay and light verse.

HERMAN GETS 4 HITS, 4 RUNS AS ROBINS WIN, 11-5

Babe Smashes 2 Homers in Game with Cards.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 8.—(AP)—With Babe Herman showing the way, the league leading Brooklyn Robins pounded out a 11 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today.

Herman was at bat four times, hit safely four times, including two homers, scored four runs, and drove in a like number. In his home run activities he was assisted by Wright and Flowers, who got one each.

Meanwhile Ray Phelps was breezing to his twelfth triumph of the season.

GIANTS WIN TWICE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Taking advantage of the breaks and aided by steady pitching, the New York Giants took a double header from the Pittsburgh Pirates today, winning the opener, 3 to 1, and the second game, 7 to 2.

Bill Walker kept the Pirates' eleven hits well scattered in the first encounter, while Pittsburgh played erratic ball behind Melvin and Hanson.

In the last game Carl Hubbell held the Pirates to five hits, only one of which was made after the second inning. Terry started at bat with three singles and a triple, while home runs were hit by Conners, Hogan, and Rottger.

Macks Win 2 from Sox, 5-1 and 4-1

ly to right. While Simmons was at bat Berg committed a passed ball and Haas ran home.

The 1 to 1 tie existed until the third, when Dyer hammered one of the Jackrabbits baseballs into the seats in left. In view of the failure of the Sox to do anything with Grove after the first inning, this homer would have been enough to give the champs the verdict, but they added three more in the sixth as a way of impressing on the Chicagoans that it is bad business to make errors. In this round Watwood messed up Haas' grounder. Mulvey followed by dropping a throw on what should have been a double play. Then Simmons spanked home No. 28 into the bleachers in left for three runs.

The Sox also had the honor of starting the scoring in the second game. They assaulted Shores for a run in round two. Jolley drew a pass and Clissell forced him. Eventually Spider Bill got around to the plate on Kerr's double to left. This slim lead stood up until the fourth, when the Macks put together two hits off Lyons for a tying run. Haas led off with a single was sacrificed to second by Cochrane and came home on a single by Simmons. Lyons managed to retire the next two batters on fly balls.

Simmons Gets Kneak Double.

It was more a matter of luck than skill that permitted the Macks to go ahead with a run in the seventh. The Great Simmons was the first to bat and as usual the outfielders moved back to the fence. When Simmons hit an ordinary fly ball in short center he was there to receive it and let safe for a two bagger. He went to third on Fox's infield out and scored on Miller's single.

Some legging hitting figured when the world champs clinched their second decision of the day with two runs in the eighth. Boley opened the inning by doubling to left center. Haas bunted him to third. Cochrane was ordered up to bat for Old Man Wallie Schang and responded with a two bagger down the right field line, Bishop scoring. Then Simmons singled between third and short, driving in Cochrane with the last run of the superheated afternoon.

MALLOY TO SEE SHARKEY'S BOSS TODAY FOR BOUT

New York, Aug. 8.—(Special).—Mack Malloy, Chicago fight promoter, here to perfect arrangements for a heavyweight fight between Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera, said tonight that he had not as yet seen the Lithuanian manager. Malloy said he is going to close the match with Sharkey tomorrow or he will seek Stripling as an opponent for the huge Italian.

Old Whiskery Beats Crosso by 2 Lengths

BY FRENCH LANE.

Old Whiskery, 1927 Kentucky Derby winner, hasn't lost the desire to show his flying heels to a band of rivals. He proved it yesterday at Hawthorne for the second time in two years when he won the Shady Side purse at a mile and 70 yards. Five other good performers ran in the handicap.

Whiskery Came Down the stretch much as he did on that Derby day three years ago. He took the lead a sixteenth from home and went on to beat Val Crane's Crosso by two lengths and a half, with Jean Lafitte willing fast but able to save third money.

Wins Far Apart.

In the last two years Whiskery has started 26 times. He won from a mediocre band at Washington Park last June and from then until he went to the post in the Shady Side yesterday he didn't seem to care whether he won or not.

Whiskery's public did not desert him. They made him the favorite. However, it was a weak hearted bunch of backers he had because in the final payoff he was at $6.00 to win, $4.02 to place, and $2.00 to show. He paid 3 to 1 to place. There had been stout support for Jean Lafitte, but the two leaders almost outran her.

After Lieut. Russell opened up a lead of five lengths over the back stretch, Crosso caught him on the lower bend and sailed into what seemed to be a comfortable lead. But Jockey Garner was moving up in the middle of the track, where the going was best, with Whiskery.

Crosso led into the stretch, but Whiskery was charging down on the outside at a terrific clip. Jockey Garner seemed to have pressed the button and Whiskery opened up on all cylinders. He galloped on past Crosso and Garner was easing him up in the final stages.

McGonigle Starts Late.

Stuyvesant Peabody's McGonigle eliminated himself from further racing at Hawthorne this season in the mile and 70 yards fifth race after he delayed the start by his bad post behavior for almost four minutes. When the start cackled the other 14 horses, McGonigle was still in the paddock. He was the favorite at post time. They expected to cheer McGonigle as he marched to victory. But the cheers turned to boos when he was away late. Although McGonigle was a gallop race after his bad start and was running in fifth place and fastest of all at the finish the boos continued when he came back to be unseated.

Milward Leads All Way.

Frances Milward raced into the lead early and held it all the way. She beat Plumage by three lengths and Sambo G finished third after running close all the way.

BUD CHARLTON IS FEATURE WINNER ON LATONIA OVAL

Latonia, Ky., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Bud Charlton from F. M. Miller's barn captured the Bellevue, feature event on today's card, a test of a mile and 70 yards for three year olds.

Royal Yeoman took the place money while Mindoro accounted for the show end of the purse. When the break came Bud Charlton was off running, followed by Royal Yeoman and Mindoro. Royal Yeoman challenged Mindoro at the bend for home, but was no match for the winner. Bud Charlton ran the distance in 1:46 flat and was ridden by the Negro rider, R. Simpson. The winner paid $1.95 for $2.

Philadelphia Golfer in Canadian Final Today
